Fundamentals of Psychological Assessment
Psychological Assessment: Meaning and Issues
The roots of psychological assessment
The current scope of psychological assessment
Psychological assessment: what is it? Confusion of assessment with testing
Psychological assessment: science and/or art? From testing to assessment
The modern matrix of psychological assessment
The influence of practical settings
The teaching and application of psychological assessment and the outlook
The Psychological Assessor
Judging others: Gordon Allport
The assessor's personality type as a factor in judging others: Henry A Murray
Orientations to clinical judgment
The practical use of psychological assessment
Personality issues in the psychological assessor
Role related issues in the psychological assessor
Ethical orientation to psychological assessment
The Context of Psychological Assessment
The changing Zeitgeist
New orientations to assessment
Philosophical/scientific underpinnings of assessment
Changing orientations to personality and psychopathology
Assessment and classification
Reliability/validity: how good is psychological assessment
Some technical problems with psychometric testing
Validity of computer testing
Clinical versus statistical prediction: focus on the validity of two approaches to psychological assessment
The economics of psychological assessment
The social context of psychological assessment
The Measurement Tradition
The psychometric concept
The practice of psychometric testing
The psychometric cafeteria
Some special problems with psychometric testing
Computer testing
The Clinical Tradition
The measurement tradition and the clinical tradition: differences and similarities
When is a test not a test? The clinical tradition: the modern phase
Schafer on Rapaport-Schafer
The Tools of Psychological Assessment

Psychological Testing: Intellectual and Neuropsychological Evaluation

Intelligence testing

Neuropsychological assessment

Psychological Testing: Personality Inventories and Projective Techniques

Personality inventories

Projective techniques

Additional Tools of Psychological Assessment: Observing and Interviewing, and a System of Classification

Observing and interviewing

The diagnostic and statistical manual

Applications of Psychological Assessment

The Assessment Process

Conceptualizing an assessment schema

A schema to present the basic concepts of this book

Approaches to case formulation

The Assessment Process, Continued: Responsible and Effective Psychological Report

Writing

Content of the psychological report

The common content categories in psychological reports: a critique

Responsibility and effectiveness

Quickie reports

The perennial pitfalls in writing psychological reports

Assessment for Treatment

Questioning the assumption

Conceptualizing the relationship of psychological assessment to therapy

The current status of psychological assessment in the practice of psychotherapy

The road map concept of psychological therapeutics

The Case Workup

Selecting a battery

Gathering necessary data

The role of

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.