Unity and Synthesis
What Is Synthesis?
The Law of Association
Associationism and Apriority
Representations and Concepts
Kant's Defensible Results
Synthesis and the Productive Imagination
Robert Paul Wolff on Rules of Synthesis
The "Problem" of Early Cognition
Constructing Representations of Objects and the "Binding" Problem
Making Judgments About Objects
The Problem of Judgment
The Synthesis of Intuitions
The "One-Step" Deduction
Constructing Judgments
The Objective and Subjective Sides of the Deduction
Replying to Hume's Heap
Troubles with Apperception
Avoiding the Subjective Deduction
Apperception as the Cogito
Strawson and the Self-Ascription Reading
The "Logical" Reading of Apperception
Two Mistaken Assumptions
Hume
Hume's Problem
Hume's Absence
Kant's Knowledge of Hume's Position
The Denial of Real Connection
Synthesis and Apperception
Connecting Cognitive States by Synthesis
Transcendental Synthesis
Apperception and Transcendental Synthesis
Apperception
Arguing for the Synthetic Unity of Apperception
Apperception and Representation
Judgments
Kant's Functionalism
Intuitions
The Reply to Hume
A Cognitive Criterion of Mental Unity
Unity of Apperception as Mental Unity