Timetable

Introduction

A Life between Public and Private Instruction: Al-Ghazālī's Biography

The Main Sources for al-Ghazālī's Biography

Al-Ghazālī's Date of Birth: Around 448/1056

Al-Ghazālī’s Early Years and His Education

Becoming a Famous Jurist and Theologian

Leaving Baghdad, Traveling in Syria and the Hijaz, and Returning to Khorasan

The Ideal of a Secluded Life—His Last Years in Khorasan

Al-Ghazālī’s Most Influential Students and Early Followers

Abū Bakr ibn al-'Arabī (d.543/1148)

Ibn al-'Arabī’s First Report of His Meeting with al-Ghazālī

Ibn al-'Arabī’s Second Report of His Meeting with al-Ghazālī

As'ad al-Mayhanī (d. 523/1130 or 527/1132-33)

Muḥammad ibn Yaḥyā al-Janzū (d.549/1154)

Ibn Tūmar (d. 524/1130)

'Ayn al-Quṣṣāṣ (d. 525/1131)

The Anonymous Author of The Lion and the Diver (al-Asad wa-l-ghawwāṣ)

Al-Ghazālī’s Refutation of the falsafa in the Incoherence (Taqfut)

Al-Ghazālī's fatwā against Three Teachings of the falsafa

Unbelief and Apostasy

The Decisive Criterion (Fayṣal al-tafriqa)

The Reconciliation of Reason and Revelation through the "Rule of Interpretation" (Qanūn al-ta'awwul)

Three Different Types of Passages in Revelation

A Dispute about al-Ghazālī’s Approach: Ibn Ghaylān versus Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī

Demonstrative Knowledge (burhān) and Its Opposite: Emulation of Authorities (taqlīd)

Cosmology in Early Islam: Developments That Led to al-Ghazālī’s Incoherence of the Philosophers

Ash'arite Occasionalism in the Generations before al-Ghazālī’s Incoherence of the Philosophers

Secondary Causes in Ash'arite Theology

The falsāfa’s View of Creation by Means of Secondary Causality

The falsāfa’s View That This World Is Necessary

Al-Ghazālī’s Treatment of Causality in MS London, Or. 3126

The Seventeenth Discussion of The Incoherence of the Philosophers

The First Position: Observation Does Not Establish Causal Connections

The First Approach of the Second Position: How the Natural Sciences Are Possible Even in an Occasionalist Universe

The Second Approach of the Second Position: An Immanent Explanation of Miracles

Overcoming Occasionalism: The Third Position