Preface

List of Abbreviations

List of Figures

List of Maps

Disraeli, the Balkans, and the Ottoman Empire (1804-74)

Origins

Ancestry: Isaac D'Israeli

Hit Father's Library: Gibbon and Machiavelli

The Mark of the Times: Canning and Byron

The Grand Tour

In Search of Identity

'The Eastern Fashion' and Conservative Romanticism

The Roots of Russophile From Canning to Wellington

The Grand Tour as a Social Ritual

The Beginning of the Journey: Moorish Spain

Malta: Turkish Tobacco and Imperial Solidarity

Corfu and Epirus: From Turkish Volunteer to Brush Diplomat

The Roots of Turkophilia: The Charms of the 'Orient' and Class Solidarity

The Peloponnese and Athens: Contempt for the Greeks

Constantinople: 'My Turkish Prejudices'

Syria and the Holy Land: An Eastern Identity

Egypt: Life 'a là Turque'

The Upward Rise: Politics and Literature

A Tory Radical: From Wellington to Canning

Contarini Fleming: The Sultan's Warrior and the Italian Patriot

The 'National Theme' in Alroy: The Jews Against the Turks

The Rise of Iskander: 'Beautiful Greece' and 'Moslem Yoke'

The Return to the Conservatives and Entry into Parliament

Eastern Entanglements: Metternich as a Role-Model

The Serbian Crisis: Crisis: Conflict with Peel

Between Palmerston and Metternich

Coningsby: The Eastern Identity Takes Shape

Tancred: 'Glowing Empires' and 'Tyranny of Self-Government'

Orientalism and the Division of the Ottoman Empire

'Turkophilia' or 'Proto-Zionism'

Consolidating his Beliefs: The Crimean War and the Ministerial Years

The Crimean War: 'Two Schools'

Balkan Nationalism or 'Artificial Insurrections'

The New Imperialism and 'the Instinct of Power'

'The Love of Fame'

The Prime Minister: Preserving the Sums Quo
The Jewish Question in Serbia and Romania
The Case of Gaston Phoebus: From 'Hellenism' to Eastern Orthodoxy
Russia's Return to the Balkans: 'Power can only be met by Power'
Lord Beaconsfield and the Eastern Crisis (1875-8)
'The Eastern Question Again!': From Herzegovina Insurrection to the Berlin Memorandum
Taking Over the Reins of Foreign Policy
The Dreikaiserbund Threat and the Danger of Isolation
'War in Sight': The Prime Minister's First Success
The Uprising in Herzegovina: Suspicion towards Austria-Hungary
'This Dreadful Herzegovina Affair'
Home Rule in Bosnia and Herzegovina
Pressure on Serbia
'Wonderful Turkish Bankruptcy'
Triumph in Egypt
Russia and Austria-Hungary: Two Empires, Four Policies
The Andrássy Note: 'Erroneus in Principle and Pernicious in Practice'
'The Empress of India'
'Very Bad News From Turkey'
The Berlin Memorandum: 'We have been Treated as if we were Serbia or Montenegro'
Britain Takes the Leading Role
The Prime Minister's Threats and Offers
'The Utter Discomfiture of Russia': Undermining the Three Emperors' League
'The Serbian Conspiracy' and 'Bulgarian Agitation': The Serbo-Turkish War and the Revolt of Public Opinion
'Une Saignée Nécessaire'
'Foreign Agents and Foreign Committees'
'Bulgarian Atrocities'
'The Infamous Invasion of the Serbians'
Arrangement without Britain: The Reichstadt Agreement
'Indignity in Parliament'
The Return of Gladstone
The Peerage and Imperial Passion
Lord Beaconsfield Launches Peace Talks
'The Bulgarian Agitation'
The Unyielding Prime Minister
Beaconsfield's Plan for the Partition of the Ottoman Empire
Gladstone's Pamphlet and the Pinnacle of the Agitation
The Question of Beaconsfield's Jewish Motives
The Shaken Prime Minister
Beaconsfield Relents: New Balkan Autonomies
Beaconsfield Provokes: The Speech at Aylesbury
Tsar Demands Bulgaria p. 156
Beaconsfield Demands Constantinople p. 158
The First Conflict with Derby p. 159
Rescuing Turkey: The Constantinople Conference and the London Protocol p. 166
The Tsar's Ultimatum p. 166
The Beginning of Negotiations with Austria-Hungary p. 167
The Appointment of Lord Salisbury p. 168
The Exchange of Threats p. 169
'European Dynasty' or National States p. 171
'Tenterdenism is a Dusty Affair': Instructions for Salisbury p. 173
'Distribution of Power' or 'Religious Enthusiasm' p. 174
The Prime Minister's Secret Messages p. 176
Salisbury and Ignatiev Draw the Borders of the Balkans p. 177
Navarino's Ghosts p. 179
'Salisbury is more Russian than Ignatiev' p. 183
'I wish Russians & Turks were all at the Bottom of the Black Sea' p. 185
The Fall of Midhat Pasha: 'We are now indeed as free as air' p. 188
The Dreikaiserbund Strikes Back: The Budapest Convention p. 190
Duels in Parliament: The Interests of Empires and the Rights of Nations p. 191
Russia's 'Golden Bridge': The London Protocol p. 194
Beaconsfield Demands Gallipoli p. 199
The Prime Minister's Dictatorial Powers: the Russo-Turkish War and Conflicts within the Cabinet p. 202
Moving Away from Derby and Closer to the Queen p. 202
Sickness and Neutrality p. 204
'The English Rights' Versus 'the Rest of the World' p. 205
The Prime Minister Seeks Allies p. 208
The Russians Cross the Danube p. 210
Beaconsfield's Decisive Measures p. 213
A Belligerent Queen, a Cautious Army, and Disobedient Ministers p. 215
Plevna: Relaxation and Private Diplomacy p. 217
'Salisbury is more Russian than Ignatiev' p. 219
'Multiform Power', 'Inland Mongrels', and 'Rascals' p. 222
The Prime Minister's Attempts at Mediation p. 225
'Diplomacy with the Eastern Question is a Daemon Incarnate' p. 227
The Fall of Plevna and the Beginning of the Showdown with Derby p. 228
Concentrating Power in the Hands of Beaconsfield and Winning over Salisbury p. 230
The Prime Minister's Demands: Access to the Straits and War Loans p. 234
Beaconsfield Wins over Public Opinion and Ousts Lord Carnarvon p. 236
'When You Say Government You Mean Lord Beaconsfield' p. 238
The Adrianople Armistice and the Rise of Jingoism p. 238
At the Gates of Constantinople: The Threat of War p. 241