The Dialog about the Holocaust in Families of Survivors and Families of Perpetrators

Questions and method
Similarities and differences in family dialog
Similarities and differences in public discourse about the Shoah in Israel and West and East Germany
Families of Survivors in Israel, West and East Germany
Traumatic family pasts
Surviving together and living apart in Israel and West Germany: the Genzor family

The collective trauma of the Lodz Ghetto: the Goldstern family
Surviving as inmate-functionaries: the Shapiro/Sneidler family
Shared and divided worlds: the Stern family
The Kubiak/Grunwald family dialog: blocking out the theme of migration from Israel to East Germany

Israeli Families of Forced Emigrants from Germany
Families with grandparents of the 'Youth Aliyah generation'
A love-hate relationship with Germany: the Arad family
The intergenerational process of mourning: the families of Fred, Lea and Nadja Weber

East German Families of Forced Emigrants
Remembering in the light of anti-fascism in East Germany
Anti-fascism as substitute mourning: the Basler family
An anti-fascist 'legend'?: the Kaufmann family

Families of Nazi Perpetrators and Accomplices in West and East Germany
National Socialism and antisemitism in intergenerational dialog
Passing the guilt on to the grandchildren: the Sonntag family
We are the victims of history: the Seewald family

Two Family Dialogs Compared Veiling and denying

Glossary

Bibliography

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.