Preface
Introduction
Economic and ideological power relations
A theory of the modern state
The Industrial Revolution and old regime liberalism in Britain, 1760-1880
The American Revolution and the institutionalisation of confederal capitalist liberalism
The French Revolution and the bourgeois nation
Conclusion to chapter 4-6: the emergence of classes and nations
Geopolitics and international capitalism
Struggle over Germany, I: Prussia and authoritarian national capitalism
Struggle over Germany, II: Austria and confederal representation
The rise of the modern state, I: quantitative data
The rise of the modern state, II: the autonomy of military power
The rise of the modern state, III: bureaucratization
The rise of the modern state, IV: the expansion of civilian scope
The resistible rise of the British working class, 1815-1880
The middle class nation
Class struggle in the second industrial revolution, 1880-1914, I: Great Britain
Class struggle in the second industrial revolution, 1880-1914, II: comparative analysis of working class movements
Class struggle in the second industrial revolution, 1880-1914, III: the peasantry
Theoretical conclusion: classes, states, nations and the sources of social power
Empirical culmination - over the top: geopolitics, class struggle and World War I

Appendix
Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.