Introduction
Factional competition and political development in the New World: an introduction

Chiefdoms
The power of prestige: competitive generosity and the emergence of rank societies in lowland Mesoamerica
Factional ascendance, dimensions of leadership, and the development of centralized authority
External warfare and the internal politics of northern South American tribes and chiefdoms
Chiefdom rivalries, control, and external contacts in lower Central America
Factional competition and the political evolution of Mississippian chiefdoms in the southeastern United States

States
Ethnicity and political control in a complex society: the Tarascan state of prehispanic Mexico
Ethnic groups and factions in Aztec Mexico
Factional divisions within the Aztec (Colhua) royal family
Alliance and intervention in Aztec imperial expansion
Political factions in the transition from Classic to Postclassic in the Mixteca Alta

Internal subdivisions of communities in the prehispanic valley of Oaxaca
Cycles of conflict: political factionalism in the Maya lowlands
Political cosmology among the Quiche Maya
Factionalism and political development in the central Andes Terence

Discussion
Factional competition and historical materialism
Conclusions: moiety opposition, segmentation and factionalism in New World political areas

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.