Introduction
Archaeology
Han Dynasty tomb structures and contents
Two Eastern Han sites: Mixian and Houshiguo
Excavated manuscripts: context and methodology
The archaeology of the outlying lands
Urbanism
The Eternal City and the City of Eternal Peace
Appendix: major sources for Chang'an
Imperial tombs
Appendix: tombs of the Han emperors
Archaeology in China: a view from outside
Administration
The laws of 186 BCE
Appendix: legal documents
Administration of the family (Qihuai bisi)
Appendix: on the sources
Social distinctions, groups and privileges
The operation of the government
Technical Arts
Numbers, numeracy and the cosmos
Appendix: nine canons
Divination and astrology received texts and excavated manuscripts
Writings related to divination
Mantic practitioners
Manuscripts, received texts and the healing arts
Appendix: early evidence of the healing arts
Yin-yang, five phases and qi
Appendix: correlative cosmology
Religious practices in Han
Religious change under Eastern Han and its successors some current perspectives and problems
Four problematic texts in the history of Daoism
Post-Han extra-canonical sources
Modes of Persuasion
The techniques of persuasion and the rhetoric of disorder (Luan)
Texts and authors in the Shiji
Tropes of music and poetry: from Wudi (r. 141-87 BCE) to ca. 100 CE
The art of persuasion from 100 BCE to 100 CE
Prose and authority 100-300 CE
Literary criticism and personal character in poetry ca. 100-300 CE