

Acknowledgements

Introduction Margaret Atack & Christopher Lloyd

Constructing The War In Narrative

Introduction

The role of literature in framing perceptions of reality: the example of the Second World War

Representing the war: contemporary narratives of World War Two

Getting at the truth: some issues of sources in the construction of an understanding of the Second World War and Occupation in France

La Main à plume: poetry under the Occupation

A reading of Genet's adaptations from the Russian novel in his Occupation narratives

Private and public spaces and places in Jonathan Littell's Les Bienveillantes

Henry Bauchau's Le Boulevard périphérique: The war story as clarification and investigation of the present

Representation And Reception

Introduction

Corruptions of memory: some reflections on history, representation and le devoir de mémoire in France today

Lived experience past/reading experience present

Fictions of testimony: Irène Némirovsky and Suite française

Hoaxes and the memory of the Second World War: from Un Héros très discret to Misha Defonseca

Framing the past

The traumatised national community in Anna Langfus's Les Bagages de sable

When the SS-man says I: on Robert Merle, Michel Rachline and Jonathan Littell

Trajectories

Introduction

Distorted mirrors: Jewish identity in French post-war films on the Occupation

The liberal way of war? French representations of the Allies 1944-2008

'Avoir vingt ans dans cette effroyable tourmente': Second World War Diaries in the Light of Héléne Berr's Journal

Maurice Blanchot's Aminadab: a novel about collective memory under Vichy

Life as an 'enfant de collabo': Marie Chaix's evolution 1974-2005

'Un Passé qui ne passe pas': Patrick Modiano's Accident nocturne and Dans le café de la jeunesse perdue

Conclusion

Notes On Contributors

Index

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.