

Preface

Introduction: Nature, law, and natural law in early modern Europe

From limits to laws: the transformation of ancient atomism in early modern philosophy

Expressing nature's regularities and their determinations in the late Renaissance

The legitimation of law through God, tradition, will, nature and constitution

The concept of (natural) law in the doctrine of law and natural law of the early modern era

'Lex certa' and 'ius certum': the search for legal certainty and security

Crimen contra naturam

Nature's regularity in some Protestant natural philosophy textbooks 1530-1630

Natural order and divine salvation: Protestant conceptions in early modern Germany (1550-1750)

Natural law and celestial regularities from Copernicus to Kepler

The approach to a physical concept of law in the early modern period: a comparison between Matthias Bernegger and Richard Cumberland

Leibniz's concept of jus naturale and lex naturalis - defined 'with geometric certainty'

Controversies on nature as universal legality (1680-1710)

From principles to regularities: tracing 'laws of nature' in early modern France and England

Unruly weather: natural law confronts natural variability

In search of the Newton of the moral world

Deus legislator

Bibliography

Index

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.