Preface p. ix
Acknowledgment p. xvii
The Early Years p. 3
Freud's Early Ideas
Transference as a Central Concept
The Evolution of the Concept of Transference p. 23
The Transference Papers p. 35
"The Dynamics of the Transference” (1912) p. 35
"Further Recommendations in the Technique of Psycho-Analysis: Recollection, Repetition and Working Through” (1914) p. 51
"Further Recommendations in the Technique of Psycho-Analysis: Observations on Transference-Love” (1915) p. 65
Contemporary Perspectives p. 81
Dream Interpretation
The Exceptional Position of the Dream in Freudian Thought p. 99
Freud's Dream Papers p. 109
"The Employment of Dream-Interpretation in Psycho-Analysis” (1912) p. 109
"Remarks upon the Theory and Practice of Dream-Interpretation” (1923) p. 117
Contemporary Perspectives p. 133
Clinical Practice
Freud's Practical Suggestions p. 143
Freud's Recommendations Papers p. 153
"Recommendations for Physicians on the Psycho-Analytic Method of Treatment” (1912) p. 153
"Further Recommendations in the Technique of Psycho-Analysis: On Beginning the Treatment. The Question of the First Communications. The Dynamics of the Cure.” (1913) p. 165
Contemporary Perspectives p. 193
Freud's Final Views
Freud on Analyzability, Termination, and Recovery of Pathogenic Memories p. 209
Freud's Termination and Construction Papers p. 225
"Analysis Terminable and Interminable” (1937) p. 225
"Constructions in Analysis” (1937) p. 241
Contemporary Views of Termination p. 257
Contemporary Views of Reconstruction p. 271
Integrating Freud's Legacy with Contemporary Views and Experience
Freud's Actual Conduct of Treatment p. 285
The Widening Scope of Psychoanalysis p. 313
Freud's Positions p. 329
References p. 347
Credits p. 369
Author Index p. 371
Subject Index p. 375