Introduction: why learning lives? Julian Sefton-Green and Ola Erstad
Changing Approaches to Studying Learning: Identity, Policy and Social Change
Tracing learning and identity across sites: tensions, connections and transformations in and between everyday and institutional practices
Procedural methodologies and digital forms of learning
Thinking about feeling: affect across literacies and lives
Learning lives in second modernity
Digital dis-connect? The ‘digital learner’ and the school
From Learning to Learners: Learning Lives as They are Lived
Expanding the chronotypes of schooling for the promotion of students’ agency
Discursive construction of learning lives for individuals and the collective Social entrepreneurship: learning environments with exchange value
The construction of parents as learners about pre-school children’s development
Participant categorizations of gaming competence: Noob and Imba as learner identities
Making a film-maker: four pathways across school, peer culture, and community
Portrait of the artist as a younger adult: multimedia literacy and ‘effective surprise’

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.