List of Figures ........................................... p. vii
Notes on Contributors ................................... p. ix
Virtual Methods and the Sociology of Cyber-Social-Scientific Knowledge .............. p. 1
Research Relationships and Online Relationships ........................................... p. 17
Introduction ............................................................................................................. p. 17
Internet Behaviour and the Design of Virtual Methods ........................................ p. 21
Online Interviewing and the Research Relationship ............................................. p. 35
From Online to Offline and Back: Moving from Online to Offline Relationships with Research Informants .............................................................. p. 51
Researching the Online Sex Work Community ..................................................... p. 67
Ethnographic Presence in a Nebulous Setting ....................................................... p. 81
Centring the Links: Understanding Cybernetic Patterns of Co-production, Circulation and Consumption ............................................................... p. 93
Research Sites and Strategies .................................................................................. p. 109
Introduction ............................................................................................................. p. 109
The Role of Maps in Virtual Research Methods ................................................... p. 113
New Connections, Familiar Settings: Issues in the Ethnographic Study of New Media Use at Home ............................................................. p. 129
Doing Anthropology in Cyberspace: Fieldwork Boundaries and Social Environments ........................................................................................................ p. 141
Web Sphere Analysis: An Approach to Studying Online Action ........................... p. 157
The Network Approach to Web Hyperlink Research and its Utility for Science Communication .............................................................. p. 171
Sociable Hyperlinks: An Ethnographic Approach to Connectivity ....................... p. 183
Epilogue: Methodological Concerns and Innovations in Internet Research ........ p. 199
References ............................................................................................................... p. 209

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.