Foreword
Notes on Contributors
Editors’ Preface
The Nuremberg Trial in Historical Context
The Atmospherics of the Nuremberg Trial
The Nuremberg Tribunal and German Society: International Justice and Local Judgment in Post-Conflict Reconstruction
The European Experience and the Nuremberg Tribunal
The Nuremberg Tribunal and the German Public 1945-49
Was the IMT Seen as Victor’s Justice?
Receiving the Message: Truth as Recovery and Clarification
Which Unique Features Made the Nuremberg Trial a Success with the Contemporary German Public?
Collective Amnesia 1949-60
Regaining Collective Memories 1960-80: The Impact of Major Trials
Lessons to Be Learned from the Nuremberg Tribunal: The Slow Pace of Civilising Impact
Nuremberg and the Importance of Criminal Responsibility
The Importance of a Retributive Approach to Justice
Investigating International Crimes: A Review of International Law Enforcement Strategies Expediency v Effectiveness
Prosecuting International Crimes
The Role of Prosecutorial Discretion
Efforts to Limit Prosecutorial Discretion
Prosecutorial Strategies
The Ad Hoc Tribunals
The Strategy Developed by the ICTY
The Strategy Developed by the ICTR
Recently Established Courts and Tribunals
The Strategy Developed by the Special Court for Sierra Leone
The Strategy Developed for East Timor and Kosovo
The Strategy Being Developed at the ICC
The Strategy Being Developed for the Khmer Rouge Trials
Conclusion
Justice Betrayed: Post-1945 Responses to Genocide
Introduction
Nuremberg Lessons
Holocaust Lessons
The International Criminal Court and the Future
Nuremberg and the Development of Substantive International Criminal Law
Contributions of the Nuremberg Trial to the Subsequent Development of International Law
Introduction
The Australian Army's Role p. 247
What Lessons Can Be Learnt from the Australian War Crimes Trials Program p. 247
Strengthening International Humanitarian Law p. 248
‘Victor’s Justice’ p. 250
The Need for Adequate Resources p. 253
Vulnerability to Outside Pressures p. 255
Postscript p. 257
Australia’s War Crimes Trials and Sections p. 257
Excluding the Undesirable: Interpreting Article 1F(a) of the Refugee Convention in Australia p. 259
Introduction p. 259
Choosing the Appropriate International Instrument p. 263
The Range of Available Definitions p. 263
Potential Limits on the Choice of International Instrument p. 265
Defining War Crimes and Crimes against Humanity p. 268
The Availability of Defences to Article 1F(a) Crimes p. 272
Demonstrating Individual Responsibility for Criminal Acts p. 276
Conclusion p. 280
Australian Implementation of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court p. 283

Introduction
Uncertain Bedfellows: Australia’s Relationship with International Law p. 285
To Join or Not to Join? Australia and the ICC p. 286
Early Indications of Support p. 287
The Position of the United States p. 289
National Sovereignty and the Principle of Complementarity p. 291
Key Issues in the Australian Ratification Debate p. 292
The ICC as a Threat to National Sovereignty p. 294
The Crimes within the Jurisdiction of the ICC Are of Uncertain Scope and Meaning p. 295
The Court Will Be Unaccountable, Unjust in Its Procedures, and Prone to Political Control p. 299
Ratification Will Expose Members of the Australian Defence Force to Prosecution and Thereby Compromise Its Ability to Participate in Peacekeeping and Other Operations p. 300

Ratification of the Rome Statute Would Be Unconstitutional p. 301
The Ratification Debate Intensifies p. 302
Australia Ratifies p. 308
Problems with Australian Domestication of the Rome Statute Offences p. 311
The Applicable Law p. 313
The Offence of Wilful Killing p. 316
Wilful Killing and Recklessness p. 317
The Principles of Military Necessity and Proportionality p. 319
Protected Persons p. 321
Available Defences  p. 321
The Use of General Criminal Code Defences in relation to a Charge of Wilful Killing  p. 321
A Defence of ‘Lawful Authority’  p. 323
Conclusion on Problems with the Crime of Wilful Killing  p. 324
Conclusion  p. 325

Table of Contents provided by Blackwell's Book Services and R.R. Bowker. Used with permission.