Preface p. ix
List of Figures p. xi
List of Tables p. xv
Introduction: Reconstruction of Intimate and Public Spheres in Asian Modernity p. 1
"First Modernity" and "Second Modernity"—A Redefinition Focusing on Demography and Gender p. 2
Asian Families and States p. 19
Structure of This Book p. 28
Individualization without Individualism: Compressed Modernity and Obfuscated Family Crisis in East Asia p. 37
The Paradox: Individualization of Familialist East Asians p. 37
Compressed Modernity, Family Change and Individualization p. 38
Family-centered (Compressed) Modernity and Defamilization: Institutionalized Familialism p. 42
Second Modernity and Its Institutional Ramifications: Individualization as Risk Aversion p. 45
Individualization with Familialist Attitudes: Empirical Evidence p. 49
Comparative Appraisal: The Japanese Experience in Perspective p. 57
Unsustainable Societies: Low Fertility and Familialism in East Asia's Compressed and Semi-compressed Modernities p. 63
Ultra-low and Lowest-low Fertility in East Asia p. 64
Paradox of Marriage in East Asia p. 69
Varieties of Familialism and their Failure p. 78
Conclusion p. 85
Demographic Dividend and the Future of Asia p. 91
Introduction p. 91
Demographic Dividend p. 91
The Future of Asia p. 94
The Public Sphere p. 108
Summary p. 111
Shrinking of the Japanese Uniqueness: A Quantitative Analysis of Life Course Changes p. 116
Japanese Life Course Patterns and Familialism p. 116
The Uniqueness of Japan Seen from a Comparison of the Welfare Regimes p. 117
Stability of the M-shaped Employment Pattern and Its Changes p. 122
Changes in the Social Status of the Elderly and in the Meaning of Living with Their Children p. 127
Educational Attainment of Young Men and Their Initial Career p. 131
Shrinking of the Japanese System and Its Implication p. 140
Factors in the Wage Differential between Standard and Nonstandard Employment: A comparison of Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan p. 144
Question: Why are Wages for Nonstandard Employment Low? p. 144