A Summary: Boolean Networks Applied to Systemic Risk ........................................ p. 436
Commercial Mortgage Default: A Comparison of the Logistic Model with Artificial Neural Networks ................................................................. p. 455
Empirical Regularities and the Forecasting of Industrial Production ........................................ p. 468
An Examination of Neural Networks Potential Role Within Property Investment Forecasting ................................................................. p. 479
Exploratory Data Analysis by the Self-Organizing Map: Structures of Welfare and Poverty in the World ................................................................. p. 498
Clearning .................................................................................................................. p. 511
Ordinal Models for Neural Networks ........................................................................ p. 523
Improved Estimates for the Rescaled Range and Hurst Exponents ......................... p. 537
Combination of Buffered Back-Propagation and RPCL-CLP by Mixture of Experts Model for Foreign Exchange Rate Forecasting ................................................................. p. 554
Prediction with Robustness Towards Outliers, Trends, and Level Shifts ................. p. 564
Reliable Neural Network Predictions in the Presence of Outliers and Non-Constant Variances ........................................................................ p. 578
An Analysis of Stops and Profit Objectives in Trading Systems ........................................ p. 588
Analysis and Prediction of Multi-Stationary Time Series .............................................. p. 597
Trading Using Committees: A Comparative Study ......................................................... p. 612
An Interval Neural Network Architecture for Time Series Prediction ......................... p. 622
Time Series Forecasting Using Gaussian Mixture Density .............................................. p. 627
Author Index ............................................................................................................. p. 633
