ADVANCED TEXTBOOK ON TRADITIONAL CHINESE MEDICINE AND PHARMACOLOGY

Vol. I

• HISTORY
• BASIC THEORY
• DIAGNOSTICS

NEW WORLD PRESS  BEIJING, CHINA
CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

7

CHAPTER ONE

ORIGINS OF MEDICINE AND THE FORMATION OF A THEORETICAL SYSTEM OF TRADITIONAL CHINESE MEDICINE

(Remote Antiquity—Middle of Third Century A.D.) 10

Section 1 Origins of Medicine and Pharmacy

1. Origin of Health Care 10
2. Discovery of Medicinal Substances 12
3. Origin of External Treatment, Acupuncture and Moxibustion 13

Section 2 Early Activities in Medical Care and Health Protection

1. Beginnings of Understanding Diseases 15
2. Invention of Medicated Wines and Decoctions 16
3. Early Stage of Health Protection 17
4. Establishment of a Medical Service System 18
5. Conflict Between Medicine and Witchcraft 19

Section 3 Formation of a Theoretical System of Medicine

1. The Inner Canon of the Yellow Emperor—Laying the Theoretical Foundation of Traditional Chinese Medicine 22
2. Shen Nong's Classic of Herbalism—Laying the Foundation of Chinese Pharmacy 26
3. Treatise on Cold Diseases and Miscellaneous Disorders—Establishing the Therapeutic Principle of Rendering Treatment According to Overall Differentiation Syndromes 27
4. Famous Physicians—Bian Que and Hua Tuo 30

CHAPTER TWO

ALL-ROUND DEVELOPMENT OF MEDICINE

(Middle of Third Century—14th Century) 35

Section 1 Systematization and Improvement of Basic Theory

1. Systematizing, Annotating and Publishing Ancient Medical Literature 35
2. Summarizing and Improving Medical Theory 40

Section 2 Progress in Pharmacy

1. New Works on Materia Medica 43
2. Alchemy and Pharmaceutical Chemistry 45
3. Summarization of Experience in Processing Medicines 46
4. Formation of Dietotherapy 48

Section 3 Development of the Science of Prescription

1. Appearance of Practical Prescription Books 51
2. Compilation of Comprehensive Prescription Books 52

Section 4 Formation and Development of Various Clinical Fields

1. Internal Medicine 54
2. Acupuncture and Moxibustion 55
3. Surgery 58
4. Orthopedics 59
CHAPTER THREE

NEW ACHIEVEMENTS IN MEDICINE
(14th Century—Middle of 19th Century)

Section 1 Research and Systematization of Medical Theory
1. Sorting Out Classical Works
2. Compiling Various Medical Works
3. Development of Diagnostics
4. Development of Anatomy

Section 2 Great Achievements in Pharmacy
1. Li Shizhen and The Great Herbalism
2. Works on Pharmacy Subsequent to The Great Herbalism

Section 3 Achievements in Prescription Science
1. Largest Extant Prescription Book—Prescriptions of Universal Benevolence
2. Practical Prescription Books

Section 4 Theory of Epidemic Febrile Diseases and Variolation
1. Formation and Development of the Theory of Epidemic Febrile Diseases
2. Invention of Variolation

Section 5 Further Development in Various Clinical Fields
1. Internal Medicine
2. Surgery and Traumatology
3. Gynecology and Obstetrics
4. Pediatrics
5. Ophthalmology and Laryngology
6. Acupuncture and Moxibustion

Section 6 Medical and Pharmaceutical Exchanges Between China and Other Countries
1. Medical and Pharmaceutical Exchanges Between China and Korea
2. Medical and Pharmaceutical Exchanges Between China and Japan
3. Medical and Pharmaceutical Exchanges Between China and Southeast Asian Countries
4. Medical and Pharmaceutical Exchanges Between China and Arab Countries
5. Medical and Pharmaceutical Exchanges Between China and European Countries
CHAPTER FOUR
A SLOWING IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF TRADITIONAL CHINESE MEDICINE
(1840—1949) 99

Section 1 Continued Spread and Development of Western Medicine in China 99
1. Continued Spread of Western Medicine 99
2. Development of Western Medicine in China 102

Section 2 Formation of the School to Combine Traditional Chinese and Western Medicine and Its Representative Figures 104
1. Tang Zonghai 105
2. Zhu Peiwen 106
3. Yun Tiegiao 107
4. Zhang Xichun 108

Section 3 Continued Development of Traditional Chinese Medicine 109
1. Studying and Sorting out Medical Literature 109
2. Development of Clinical Medicine 111
3. Achievements in Pharmacy and the Science of Prescription 114
4. Establishment of Medical Schools and Societies of Traditional Chinese Medicine 116

Section 4 Situation of Medicine and Health Care in Modern Times 117
1. Old Regimes' Damage to Traditional Chinese Medicine and the Revolt of Physicians of Traditional Chinese Medicine 117
2. Situation of Medicine and Health Care in Old China 119
3. Health Work in Revolutionary Base Areas 120

CHAPTER FIVE
NEW DEVELOPMENTAL PERIOD OF TRADITIONAL CHINESE MEDICINE
(After the Founding of the People's Republic of China in October 1949) 123

Section 1 Policies for Health Work 123
Section 2 Achievements in Medicine and Health Work 124
1. Establishment of Urban and Rural Health Care Systems 124
2. Prevention and Treatment of Diseases 125
3. Scientific Research 126
4. Medical Education 127
5. Public Health Work of National Minorities 128
6. Pharmaceutical Industry 129

Section 3 Development of Traditional Chinese Medicine and Pharmacy 130
1. Development of Traditional Chinese Medicine and Pharmacy 130
2. Preparation of and Research into Herbal Medicine 132
3. Achievements in Integrating Traditional Chinese and Western Schools of Medicine 134

APPENDIX
CHRONOLOGY OF CHINESE MEDICINE 137