West German Industry
and the Challenge of the Nazi Past, 1945–1955

by S. Jonathan Wiesen
Contents

Acknowledgments, xi

Glossary and Abbreviations, xv

Introduction, 1
    West German Industry's Crisis of Legitimacy, 3
    Public Relations and Collective Memory, 4
    The Industrial Milieu, 7
    The Scope of This Study, 9
    German Industry and National Socialism: A Brief Overview, 11

Chapter 1. A Company Encounters the Past: The Case of Siemens, 17
    Siemens at the End of World War II, 19
    A Legacy of Complicity, 22
    Memory in Action: Rewriting the Company Past, 28
    Rhetorical Fine-Tuning, 38
    Allied Policies toward German Industry, 41
    Berlin Politics, Workers, and Siemens Guilt, 44

Chapter 2. The Beginnings of a Collective Identity, 52
    Mass Arrests and the Rebuilding of Industrial Organizations, 53
    Hermann Reusch and the Deconcentration of Industry, 56
    The Campaign against Dismantling, 60
    Nuremberg, Denazification, and the Crafting of Memory, 67
    The Courtroom Defense: Religion, the Worker, and der Bürger, 80
    Organized Labor and the Politics of Industrial Guilt, 86

Chapter 3. Creating the New Industrialist, 94
    The End of Nuremberg, 95
    Corporate Publicity: West German Industry Looks to the United States, 98
Public Relations Comes to Germany: The Deutsches Industrieinstitut, 101
The Publications of the DI, 114
Youth, Religion, and the Entrepreneurial Ethos, 119

Chapter 4. Selling the New Industrialist, 129
Industrialists and the Social Market Economy, 130
The Unternehmer and Popular Culture, 138
Markets, the Trade Fair, and the Ethic of Independence, 142
The Lingering Presence of the Nazi Past, 149

Chapter 5. Industry, Culture, and the Decline of the West, 157
Industry and Culture before 1945, 157
Industrialists and West Germany’s Spiritual Renewal, 160
The United States, Democracy, and the Revolt of the Masses, 163
Art Exhibitions and Cultural Patronage, 165
Cultural Pessimism and Ideas of Decline, 170
Industrialists as Cultural Elites?, 176

Chapter 6. Trade Unions, Workers, and the New Social Partnership, 179
The Struggle over Codetermination, 180
The Unternehmer and the Worker, 188
Human Relations and the Language of Conciliation, 190
Workers’ Publications and the Economic Miracle, 192

Chapter 7. Krupp, the United States, and the Salvation of West German Industry, 201
Krupp and the Campaign for Amnesty, 202
Taking the Legal Case to the Public, 205
International Developments and the Amnesty of German Industrialists, 209
U.S. Conservatives and the Rescue of German Industry, 215
Krupp and Louis Lochner’s Tycoons and Tyrant, 229

Conclusion: The New Industrialist and West German Memory, 236

Notes, 245
Bibliography, 291
Index, 315