Narrative Innovation and Cultural Rewriting in the Cold War and After

MARCEL CORNIS-POPE
CONTENTS

Preface xi
Acknowledgments xv

Chapter 1  Postmodernism's Polytropic Imagination:
Unwriting/Rewriting the Cold War Narratives of Polarization 1
1. Saying “Poh! to Simple Quadrilaterals”: Innovative Fiction and the Quest for an Alternative Narrative and Cultural Imagination
2. Learning to Live with Postmodernism’s Subversive Demon: From an Agonistic to a Transactive Model of Narrative Innovation
3. Rewriting History’s “Ghoststories”: The Bifurcated Focus of Innovative Fiction
4. Innovative Fiction in the Post—Cold War Transition: Charting a Course beyond the Master Plots of Globalization and “End of History”

Chapter 2  Innovative Responses to the Metanarratives of Modern History: Polysystemic Fiction, Surfiction, and the Postmodern Feminist Novel 47
1. When the “Mystery of Reason” Confronts the “Mystery of Desire”: The Rearticulation of History in Polysystemic Fiction
2. Narrative as an “Interventive” Mode: From Surfiction to Avant-Pop
3. Revisionistic Narratives from the Interstices of the Cold War: Postmodern Feminist Fiction

Chapter 3  “Chain of Links” or “Disorderly Tangle of Lines”? Alternative Cartographies of Modernity in Thomas Pynchon’s Fiction 101
1. “Wreck[ing] the Elegant Rooms of History”: Pynchon’s Polysystemic Revisions of History from the Enlightenment to the Cold War
2. From Paternalistic Orders to Dissonant Worlds of Sons and Daughters: V. and The Crying of Lot 49
3. Breaking Out of the “Fussy Biedermeier Strangulation” of Western Thought: Marginocentric Characters and Projects in Gravity’s Rainbow

4. Narrative Transgression and Rearticulation in the Age of Global Networks: Vineland

5. Surveying Modernity’s “Crimes of Demarcation”: Revisionistic Cartographies in Pynchon’s (Post-)Colonial Epic Mason and Dixon

Chapter 4 Interventive Writing in the “Post-Human” Age: Experiential and Cultural Rearticulation in Ronald Sukenick’s Fiction 147

1. Realigning the Truth of Experience with the Truth of the Page: Sukenick’s Generative Concept of Fiction
2. “Cultivate the Unexpected”: The Techniques of Improvisation and Metamorphosis
3. “Stream Language” vs. Mimetic Language: The Benefits and Failings of an Experiential Poetics
4. “The Mute Articulation of the Conditions We Live In”
5. “Repatriating” Fiction from the “Realm of Determinism to that of Potential”: A Dialectic of Unwriting/Rewriting

Chapter 5 Narrative (Dis-)Articulation in the “Shadowbox” of History: Raymond Federman’s Exploratory Surfiction 191

1. Fiction under the Sign of Saturn: Reimagined Truth vs. Factual Verisimilitude
2. How to Re-Place Life: Revisionistic Strategies of Storytelling
3. Extricating a “Real-Fictitious” Story from the Jumble of Postwar History: Federman’s Existential and Cultural Explorations
4. Imagining the Story Properly: Freedom of Invention vs. Narrative Closure
5. “Exile[d] into this Recitation”: Voices vs. Texts

Chapter 6 Translating a History of “Unspeakable” Otherness into a Discourse of Empowered “Choices”: Toni Morrison’s Novels of Radical Rememory 233

1. “Rip[ping] the Veil” of Color and Gender: Black Women’s Search for Subjecthood in The Bluest Eye and Sula
2. Interrogating Oppositional Paradigms: Hybrid Identities and Ethnic Histories in Song of Solomon and Tar Baby
3. "Unspeakable Thoughts" Spoken: Reclaiming the Other's History in Beloved
4. The Past Is Not a Repetitive Record: The Remaking of African American History from the Great Migrations to the Civil Rights Era (Jazz and Paradise)

Epilogue Exploring the Ignored Outskirts of the Art of Telling: Innovative Fiction at the Turn of the Millennium

Works Cited

Index