Disorienting Fiction

THE AUTOETHNOGRAPHIC WORK OF NINETEENTH-CENTURY BRITISH NOVELS

JAMES BUZARD

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS
PRINCETON AND OXFORD
CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS vii

PART ONE: CULTURES AND AUTOETHNOGRAPHY 1

CHAPTER ONE Uneven Developments: “Culture,” circa 2000 and 1900 3

CHAPTER TWO Ethnographic Locations and Dislocations 19

CHAPTER THREE The Fiction of Autoethnography 37

PART TWO: BRITISH FICTIONS OF AUTOETHNOGRAPHY. CIRCA 1815 AND 1851 61

CHAPTER FOUR Translation and Tourism in Scott’s Waverley 63

CHAPTER FIVE Anywhere’s Nowhere: Bleak House as Metropolitan Autoethnography 105

PART THREE: CHARLOTTE BRONTË’S ENGLISH BOOKS 157

CHAPTER SIX Identities, Locations, and Media 159

CHAPTER SEVEN An Échantillon of Englishness: The Professor 180

CHAPTER EIGHT The Wild English Girl: Jane Eyre 196

CHAPTER NINE National Pentecostalism: Shirley 218

CHAPTER TEN Outlandish Nationalism: Villette 245
PART FOUR: AROUND AND AFTER 1860 277

CHAPTER ELEVEN
Eliot, Interrupted 279

CHAPTER TWELVE
Ethnography as Interruption: Morris’s News from Nowhere 299

INDEX 315