School & Nation

Identity Politics and Educational Media in an Age of Diversity
Contents

Introduction
Peter Carrier ................................................................. 7

Part I: Identity Politics .................................................. 13

The Empire in French History Teaching.
From a Promise to a Burden
Françoise Lantheaume .................................................. 15

School and Nation in Senegal from 1960 to the Present Day.
A History of Misunderstanding
Amadou Fall ................................................................. 24

Teaching History and the Future of the Nation.
The Case of Quebec
Jocelyn Létourneau .......................................................... 38

The Social Sciences Curriculum of Catalonia and the Construction of a Regional Identity
Montserrat Oller i Freixa ................................................. 49

The Integration and Segregation of African American History.
Self-esteem and Recognition in History Education
Elizabeth Hanauer .............................................................. 58

History Teaching in Galicia
Ramón López Facal ........................................................... 70

Part II: Educational Media ............................................. 79

The Use of Literature in the Formation of French National Identity in School Teaching during the Twentieth Century
Anne-Marie Chartier .......................................................... 81

Caught between Two Empires.
History School Textbooks in Bulgaria in the Twentieth Century
Liliana Deyanova ............................................................ 91
National Languages, Regional Variations and Immigration.
The Challenge of Teaching French in Quebec
Diane Vincent ........................................................................................................ 101

Naming and Misnaming the Nation. Ambivalence and National Belonging in German Textbook Representations of the Holocaust
Peter Carrier ........................................................................................................ 114

The National History of Algeria as Reflected in Textbooks at a Time of Political and Educational Reform
Lydia Aït Saadi Bouras .......................................................................................... 125

Contributors ............................................................................................................ 135