Contents

Acknowledgments  xi

Notes on the Contributors  xv

Introduction. The Relevance of Conceptual History  1
Javier Fernández Sebastián

Part I. Conceptual History and Neighbouring Disciplines

1  Begriffsgeschichte as the History of Theory. The History of Theory as Begriffsgeschichte: An Essay  19
Hans Erich Bödeker

2  From Ideas to Concepts to Metaphors: The German Tradition of Intellectual History and the Complex Fabric of Language  45
Elías José Palti

3  Ideology and Conceptual History: The Interrelationship between Method and Meaning  73
Michael Freeden

4  The Cultural History of Intellectual Practices: An Overview  103
Peter Burke

Part II. Temporalizing Experiences and Concepts

5  ‘Temporalization’ and Political Modernity: A Tentative Systematization of the Work of Reinhart Koselleck  131
Alexandre Escudier
6 Contingency, Political Theory and Conceptual History
   Kari Palonen

7 National Cultures, Transnational Concepts: Begriffsgeschichte Beyond Conceptual Nationalism
   Pim den Boer

8 With an Eye on Future Research: The Theoretical Layers of Conceptual History
   João Feres Júnior

9 Language, Experience and Translation: Towards a Comparative Dimension
   Jörn Leonhard

Part III. On the Historical Semantics of Modern Times

10 Begriffsgeschichte and the Modern Concept of Power
    Giuseppe Duso

11 Memory, Iconology and Modernity: A Challenge for Conceptual History
    Faustino Oncina Coves

12 The Temporality of Historical Forms of Individualization in Modern Times
    Jacques Guilhaumou

13 ‘Riding the Devil’s Steed’. Politics and Historical Acceleration in an Age of Revolutions
    Javier Fernández Sebastián

Appendices

I Reinhart Koselleck. A Commemorative Speech
   Christian Meier

II European Conceptual History Project. Mission Statement