Representations of the Islamic World in History Textbooks for English Schools, 1799-2002: a Case study of the Crusades

Fiona Kisby Littleton

Student number P 050342613

Thesis submitted for the degree of Master of Arts in History and Citizenship Education by distance learning, Department of Arts and Humanities, Institute of Education, University of London External Programme, September 2009

Word count: 20,000 (excluding Appendices and bibliography)

This report/dissertation may be made available to the general public for borrowing, photocopying or consultation without the prior consent of the author.
CONTENTS

Chapter One
Introduction: context and rationale, aim and method of research 6

Chapter Two
Literature Review 19

Chapter Three
Conducting the research: methodology and project design 32

Chapter Four
Research findings 48

Chapter Five
Conclusions and recommendations 73

Appendix one: Overview of events and glossary of key dates, events, places and people mentioned in textbooks on Crusades, 1790s-2000s 90

Appendix two: Chronological and alphabetical list of textbooks consulted 95

Appendix three: Tables of results of textbook analyses by decade, 1790s-2000s 99

Appendix four: Chronological list of History Textbooks in the Institute of Education Textbook Archive 1823-1987 (CDRom) 162

Bibliography 162
List of tables

Table one: Different types of images in textbooks 40

Table two: Types of content analysis (K. Krippendorff,
Content Analysis: an introduction to its methodology.
London: Sage, 1980, p. 33) 44

Table three: Questions used for textbook analysis 46

Table four: Elements of style and format of History
textbooks through time 50

Table five: A chronology of the Crusades presented in English textbooks 1790s-2000s 53

Table six: Provisional evaluative criteria for books on the Islamic world 80

Table seven: Provisional recommendations concerning the presentation of conflict in History textbooks 83

List of illustrations and figures

Figure one: World distribution of Muslims, 2000 8
(M. Ruthven and A. Nanji, Historical Atlas of the

Figure two: Textbooks, education and society 75

Figure three: The dimensions of the textbook 76