Contents

Introduction
YOSHINOBU HAKUTANI and ROBERT BUTLER 9

1. The City as Liberating Space in Life and Times of Frederick Douglass
ROBERT BUTLER 21

2. The Harlem Renaissance City: Its Multi-Illusionary Dimension
DONALD B. GIBSON 37

3. The City and Richard Wright’s Quest for Freedom
YOSHINOBU HAKUTANI 50

4. “No Street Numbers in Accra”: Richard Wright’s African Cities
JACK B. MOORE 64

5. Stadtluft macht frei!: African-American Writers and Berlin (1892–1932)
EBERHARD BRÜNING 79

6. Richard Wright’s Paris
MICHEL FABRE 96

7. Selves of the City, Selves of the South: The City in the Fiction of William Attaway and Willard Motley
JOHN CONDER 110

8. The City as Psychological Frontier in Ralph Ellison’s Invisible Man and Charles Johnson’s Faith and the Good Thing
ROBERT BUTLER 123

9. “But the City Was Real”: James Baldwin’s Literary Milieu
FRED L. STANDLEY 138

10. If the Street Could Talk: James Baldwin’s Search for Love and Understanding
YOSHINOBU HAKUTANI 150
11. Metonymy and Synecdoche: The Rhetoric of the City in Toni Morrison’s Jazz
   Jocelyn Chadwick-Joshua 168

12. The Wall and the Mirror in the Promised Land: The City in the Novels of Gloria Naylor
   Michael F. Lynch 181

13. The Sensory Assault of the City in Ann Petry’s The Street
   Larry R. Andrews 196

14. John A. Williams: The Black American Narrative and the City
   Priscilla R. Ramsey 212

15. The Urban Pastoral and Labored Ease of Samuel R. Delany
   Donald M. Hassler 227

16. The Inner and Outer City: A Study of the Landscape of the Imagination in Black Drama
   Robert L. Tener 236

List of Contributors 254
Index 257