Contents

Acknowledgments vii

Introduction

   Cathy Lynn Preston ix

I ENGLISH AND AMERICAN CHAPBOOKS AND BROADSIDES

1 Chapbook Publishing and the "Lore" of "the Folks"
   Dianne Dugaw 3

2 Rethinking Folklore, Rethinking Literature: Looking at Robinson Crusoe and Gulliver's Travels as Folktales, A Chapbook-Inspired Inquiry
   Michael J. Preston 19

3 "My Thing is My Own": Voices, Bodies, and Sexual Politics in Broadside, Drollery, and Oral Occupational Bawdy Songs
   Cathy Lynn Preston 74

II PAKISTANI AND EGYPTIAN CHAPBOOKS

4 Chapbooks in Pakistan
   William L. Hanaway 127

5 Pashto Chapbooks, Gendered Imagery and Cross-cultural Contact
   Wilma Heston 144

6 Still the Same Old Jokes: The Continuity of Jocular Tradition in Early Twentieth-Century Egyptian Chapbooks
   Ulrich Marzolph 161
The Other Print Tradition

III PHOTOCOPY-LORE, NUMISMATIC TRADITIONS, AND HOLY CARDS

7 Models from the Past: Proto-Photocopy-Lore
   Paul Smith  183

8 In Addition to Xeroxlore: Related Subversive Traditions
   Michael J. Preston  223

9 Catholic Holy Cards: Visual, Verbal, and Tactile Codes for the (In)visible
   James F. Petruzzelli  266

Notes on Contributors  284