Contents

Richard J. Utz, University of Northern Iowa: Negotiating the Paradigm: Literary Nominalism and the Theory of Rereading Late Medieval Texts ................................................................. 1

Jay Ruud, Northern State University: Julian of Norwich and the Nominalist Questions ................................................................. 31

J. Stephen Russell, Hofstra University: The Universal Soldier: Idealism and Conceptualism in Sir Gawain and the Green Knight ......................... 51

Michael Randall, Brandeis University: Reversed Analogy in Jean Molinet's Chappellet des dames ................................................................. 81

Edgar Laird, Southwest Texas State University: Cosmic Law and Literary Character in Chaucer's Knight's Tale ................................................. 101

John Micheal Crafton, West Georgia College: Emptying the Vessel: Chaucer's Humanistic Critique of Nominalism ........................................... 117

Grover C. Furr, Montclair State University: Nominalism in the Nun's Priest's Tale: A Preliminary Study ................................................................. 135

Joseph L. Grossi, Jr., Ohio State University: The Clerk vs. the Wife of Bath: Nominalism, Carnival, and Chaucer's Last Laugh ...................................... 147

Kathryn L. Lynch, Wellesley College: The Logic of the Dream Vision in Chaucer's House of Fame ................................................................. 179

Hugo Keiper, University of Graz: "I wot myself best how y stonde:" Literary Nominalism, Open Textual Form and the Enfranchizement of Individual Perspective in Chaucer's Dream Visions ............................... 205

Bibliography .................................................................................. 235

Index .......................................................................................... 253