The Governance of Cyberspace

Politics, technology and global restructuring

Edited by Brian D. Loader

London and New York
Contents

Notes on Contributors ix
Preface xii

1 The governance of cyberspace: politics, technology and global restructuring 1
Brian D. Loader

Part I Theorising cyberspace

2 Cyberspace sociality: controversies over computer-mediated relationships 23
David Lyon

3 Virtual culture, urban social polarisation and social science fiction 38
Roger Burrows

4 The neuroscience of cyberspace: new metaphors for the self and its boundaries 46
Gwyneth Jones

5 Governmentality 64
Simon Baddeley

6 Virtual worlds and the social realities of cyberspace 97
Ralph Schroeder
Part II Nation-states, boundaries and regeneration

7 The virtual state: postmodernisation, informatisation and public administration 111
Paul Frissen

8 The challenge of cyberspatial forms of human interaction to territorial governance and policing 126
Klaus Lenk

9 'Digital democracy' or 'information aristocracy'? Economic regeneration and the information economy 136
Dave Carter

Part III Policing cyberspace: privacy and surveillance

10 Privacy, democracy, information 155
Charles D. Raab

11 The future of cryptography 175
Dorothy E. Denning

12 Multimedia information products and services: a need for 'cybercops'? 190
Puay Tang

13 The Far Right on the Internet 209
Michael Whine

Glossary 228
Bibliography 231
Index 246