ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to thank the following people, all of whom gave of their time to help me put this book together.

Richard Riegelman, M.D. who made a number of helpful suggestions and whose optimism convinced me that my efforts would qualify as “scholarly activity.”

Mary Ryan, Karyn Pomerantz, and other staff members at George Washington University, who did all of my online searches.

George Paul, who helped me obtain many of the old books and articles I needed to review.

Cassandra Allen and other staff members at the National Library of Medicine, who made certain aspects of my research much easier than they otherwise might have been.

Marguerite Fallucco, who found material in the archives of the American Medical Association which was not available in any other library.

Judith Ratner, MD, for helping me decide whether to include certain articles when, after the twentieth reading, nothing seemed funny to me anymore.

Bill Lamsback, my editor at Hanley & Belfus, for his good ideas and for letting me play a role in all aspects of the book’s production.

And finally, to all of the authors who have written medical humor over the years. Without their efforts, a book of this kind would never have been possible.
