Historical controversies
and historians

Edited by William Lamont
University of Sussex
Contents

Notes on contributors vii

Introduction: William Lamont xi

Part One: Historical Controversies 1

1 French Resistance: a few home truths
   H. R. Kedward 3

2 Ordinary Germans as Hitler's willing executioners?
   The Goldhagen controversy
   John C. G. Röbl 15

3 Unreliable memories? The use and abuse of oral history
   Alistair Thomson 23

4 The English reputations of Oliver Cromwell 1660–1900
   Blair Worden 35

5 Histories of the welfare state
   Pat Thane 49

6 Placing “race” in South African history
   Saul Dubow 65

7 Agrarian histories and agricultural revolutions
   Alun Howkins 81

Part Two: Historians 93

8 The Weber thesis: “unproven yet unrefuted”
   Richard Whatmore 95
9 R. H. Tawney: "Who did not write a single work which can be trusted"?
William Lamont

10 Lawrence Stone and interdisciplinary history
Michael Hawkins

11 Jacob Burckhardt: romanticism and cultural history
Malcolm Kitch

12 Anthony Blunt and Lucien Goldmann: Christianity, Marxism and the ends of history
Brian Young

13 Bernard Bailyn and the scope of American history
Colin Brooks

14 Writing women in: the development of feminist approaches to women's history
Gerry Holloway

15 The new history: the Annales school of history and modern historiography
Peter R. Campbell

16 Opiate of the people and stimulant for the historian? - some issues in sports history
John Lowerson

17 E. P. Thompson: witness against the beast
Eileen Janes Yeo

18 Soviet historians and the rediscovery of the Soviet past
B. Williams

Index