Contents

Preface xi
Acknowledgements xiii

Prelude 1

Chapter 1 In the beginning 6
The new and the old, archaic and modern 6
The life of a page at court 7
Chaucer's family 9
The City of London 10

Chapter 2 Chaucer's education 14
Latin 14
French 17
Italian 17
Arithmetic and numerology 18
Books and speech 20
The English language 23
To make his English sweet upon his tongue 26
The end of schooling and the development of the literate layman 28

Chapter 3 The courtly life 32
Froissart's account 32
The material and practical basis of court culture 33
Religion in court life 36
The personal religion of Edward III 39
Leisure and culture in the court 39
Chivalry and its ideals 42
The love of ladies 46
The tournament 47
Music in court 49
Feasting 49
Literature 50
Out-of-doors 51
Chaucer's representation of courtly life 51
Chaucer's experience of war 52

Chapter 4 The English and European literary traditions 55
Early reading 55
The English romances 55
English lyrics 56
Le Roman de la Rose 58
Machaut 61
Other reading and influences 62

Chapter 5 Courtier and soldier 65
A six-year gap in the records 65
Continuing education 65
Chaucer was probably in Aquitaine 69
Chaucer's wife Philippa 70
Working in the king's court 71
King Edward III and the Hundred Years War 73
The Black Death 74

Chapter 6 The Book of the Duchess I: quest and commemoration 77
Grand translateur 77
The death of Blanche, the Duchess 79
The story and style of the poem 80
The strength of an ending 86
Centre and margin 86
Quest and questioning 87
Arithmetic and numerology 88

Chapter 7 The Book of the Duchess II: dreaming the spoken and written self 90
Dream poetry 90
Dream and reality 91
The construction of the self 92
Is there a narrator separate from the poet? 94
Orality and literacy 96
Literalism 98
Chapter 8 The Book of the Duchess III: death, laughter, repetition and comfort 101
Death and laughter 101
Love and gender roles 103
Repetition and commemoration 107

Chapter 9 Diplomat and civil servant: private and public trouble 112
The Italian journey 112
Fourteenth-century Italian culture 113
What Chaucer learned from Italian literature 115
Comptroller of customs 115
Chaucer’s release from accusation of rape: his friends 118
Chaucer’s political attitude 119
Withdrawal to Kent 121

Chapter 10 From House of Fame to Parliament of Fowls: discontent and search 123
Where do we go from here? A Gothic miscellany 123
What is fame? 128
Anelida and Arcte 130
The Life of Saint Cecilia 131

Chapter 11 The Parliament of Fowls: communality and conflict 133

Chapter 12 The fair chain of love: the consolations of philosophy and Venus 144
How charming is divine philosophy? 144
Boethius 145
The form of The Consolation of Philosophy 146
A great lady instructs the author 147
The content of the Consolation 148
Date and quality of the translation 150
Oxford intellectual scepticism and empiricism 151
Other intellectual interests and Chaucer’s attitude 152
Astrology 154
Mythology and mythography 157
The classical heritage 157
The scientific basis 158
The mythographers 158
Fulgentius to Boccaccio 159
Chapter 13  The Tale of Palamon and Arcite:
love and death  163
The story of Palamon and Arcite  171
Some inner structures of the story  173
The story resumed  173
Spectacle and implication  175

Chapter 14  Troilus and Criseyde I: from a view to a death  179

Chapter 15  Troilus and Criseyde II: characters and critics  187
The ambiguity of Criseyde  196
Troilus  199
Youth, royalty and manhood in the fourteenth century  200
Troilus’s manhood  204

Chapter 16  Troilus and Criseyde III: the lore of love  212
Book I: the commentary  212
The conduct of the story  214
Book II: the story  215
Book II: commentary  217
Characterisation  218
Realism and society  220
Words and the poet’s attitudes  220
Book III: the story  221
Book III: commentary  223
Honour  224
Love as a purely personal relationship  225
Love and destiny  226
Book IV: the story  228
Book IV: commentary  231
The exploration of a dilemma  231
Variation of style  232
Book V: the story  232
Book V: commentary  237
The ending  238
The use of the Consolation in Troilus  238
The question of love  241

Chapter 17  The Legend of Good Women: Cupid’s saints  243
The Prologue to The Legend of Good Women: its versions and dates  246
The further creation of the poetic self 247
Who does Alceste represent? 248
The naked text 249
The revision of The Prologue 249
Let us now praise famous pagan women 252
Trouthe is the hyeste thyng that man may kepe 254
Love and marriage 255
Pathos, goodness and mockery 257
Let us not praise pagan gods and men too much 259
Reculer pour mieux sauter 259

Chapter 18  Prologue to The Canterbury Tales 261
In felawe shipe, and pilgrimes were they alle 261
Competition 263
Social structures 265
Rhetorical dislocation for location 269
Manuscript culture 270
The manuscripts 271
The sequence of tales 273

Chapter 19  The Canterbury Tales I: love and rivalry; tragedy and comedy 276
The raw material of stories 276
Stories come first, characters second 279
The Miller's Tale 283
The Reeve's Tale 287
The Cook's Tale 291

Chapter 20  The Canterbury Tales II: constancy and inconstancy; love and anger; trouthe and gentilesse 293
The Man of Law's Tale 293
The Wife of Bath's Prologue and Tale 297
The Friar's Prologue and Tale 305
The Summoner's Prologue and Tale 307
The Clerk's Prologue and Tale 310
The Merchant's Prologue and Tale 320
The Squire's Tale 328
The Franklin's Prologue and Tale 332

Chapter 21  The Canterbury Tales III: family honour; you find what you seek 341
The Physician's Tale 341
The Pardoner's Prologue and Tale 350