Masters of the House

CONGRESSIONAL LEADERSHIP OVER TWO CENTURIES

edited by

Roger H. Davidson
The University of Maryland

Susan Webb Hammond
American University

Raymond W. Smock
former Historian of the United States House of Representatives

WestviewPress
A Division of HarperCollinsPublishers
Contents

List of Tables vii
Foreword, Robert H. Michel ix
Credits xi

Introduction: Rediscovering the “Masters of the House,”
Roger H. Davidson and Susan Webb Hammond 1

1 The Start of Something New: Clay, Stevenson, Polk, and the Development of the Speakership, 1789–1869, Elaine K. Swift 9

2 Thomas Brackett Reed and the Rise of Party Government,
Randall Strahan 33

3 Uncle Joe Cannon: The Brakeman of the House of Representatives, 1903–1911, Scott William Rager 63

4 Oscar W. Underwood: The First Modern House Leader, 1911–1915, James S. Fleming 91

5 Nicholas Longworth: The Genial Czar, Donald C. Bacon 119

6 John Nance Garner, Anthony Champagne 145

7 The Speaker and the Presidents: Sam Rayburn, the White House, and the Legislative Process,

8 Hale Boggs: The Southerner as National Democrat,
Patrick J. Maney 223

9 Gerald R. Ford, Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, 1965–1973, James M. Cannon 259
10 Tip O'Neill and Contemporary House Leadership,
   Barbara Sinclair

   Epilogue: Leaders Talk about Leadership,
   Gerald R. Ford, Richard A. Gephardt, and Newt Gingrich

About the Editors and Contributors
Index