READINGS IN RENAISSANCE WOMEN’S DRAMA

Criticism, history, and performance 1594–1998

Edited by S. P. Cerasano and Marion Wynne-Davies

London and New York
CONTENTS

Preface xi
Acknowledgements xii
Permissions xiii

Introduction 1

PART I
Early commentaries 7

Introduction 9

1 Mary Sidney is Praised to Elizabeth I (1594) 10
2 Samuel Daniel to Mary Sidney (1594) 10
3 John Davies of Hereford Commends Mary Sidney and Elizabeth Cary (1612) 13
4 William Sheares to Elizabeth Cary (1633) 14
5 Jonson and Wroth (1640) 15
6 Elizabeth Cary’s Biography (1643–9) 16
7 Celebrating Several Ladies (1752) 16
8 The Cavalier’s Lady and her Plays (1872) 17
9 The First Scholarly Edition of Mary Sidney’s Antonie (1897) 18
10 Lumley’s Play First Published (1909) 18
11 The First Modern Edition of Mariam (1914) 19
12 Early Critical Recognition of Elizabeth Cary and Margaret Cavendish (1920) 20
13 Woolf on Margaret Cavendish (1925) 21
14 T. S. Eliot on Senecan Drama (1927) 21
CONTENTS

15 Virginia Woolf on ‘Judith Shakespeare’ (1929) 23
16 The First Edition of The Concealed Fancies (1931) 24
17 Cary and ‘A Woman’s Duty’ (1940) 26
18 Mary Sidney: Philip’s Sister (1957) 27

PART II
Contexts and issues 29

Introduction 31

1 Women playwrights in England: Renaissance noblewomen 32
   NANCY COTTON

2 The Arts at the English Court of Anna of Denmark 47
   LEEDS BARROLL

3 ‘My seeled chamber and dark parlour room’: the English country house and Renaissance women dramatists 60
   MARION WYNNE-DAVIES

4 Women as patrons of English Renaissance drama 69
   DAVID M. BERGERON

5 Women as spectators, spectacles, and paying customers 81
   JEAN E. HOWARD

6 Women as theatrical investors: three shareholders and the second
   Fortune Playhouse 87
   S. P. CERASANO

7 ‘Why may not a lady write a good play?': plays by Early Modern women
   reassessed as performance texts 95
   GWENO WILLIAMS

PART III
Early Modern women dramatists 109

Introduction 111

ELIZABETH I

1 ‘We princes, I tell you, are set on stages’: Elizabeth I and dramatic self-representation 113
   CAROLE LEVIN
CONTENTS

JANE/JOANNA LUMLEY

2 Joanna Lumley (1537?-1576/77)
Elaine V. Beilin

3 Jane Lumley’s Iphigenia at Aulis: multum in parvo, or, less is more
Stephanie Hodgson-Wright

MARY SIDNEY

4 ‘Patronesse of the Muses’
Margaret P. Hannay

5 Mary Herbert: Englishing a purified Cleopatra
Tina Krontiris

ELIZABETH CARY

6 Elizabeth Cary (1585–1639)
Elaine V. Beilin

7 The spectre of resistance: The Tragedy of Mariam (1613)
Margaret W. Ferguson

8 Resisting tyrants: Elizabeth Cary’s tragedy
Barbara Kiefer Lewalski

MARY WROTH

9 An unknown continent: Lady Mary Wroth’s forgotten pastoral drama,
‘Loves Victorie’
Margaret Anne McLaren

10 ‘Like one in a gay masque’: the Sidney cousins in the theaters of court and country
Gary Waller

JANE CAVENDISH AND ELIZABETH BRACKLEY

11 ‘To be your daughter in your pen’: the social functions of literature in the writings of Lady Elizabeth Brackley and Lady Jane Cavendish
Margaret J. M. Ezell

12 ‘She gave you the civility of the house’: household performance in The Concealed Fancies
Alison Findlay
CONTENTS

MARGARET CAVENDISH

13 'My brain the stage': Margaret Cavendish and the fantasy of female performance
SOPHIE TOMLINSON

14 'A woman write a play?': Jonsonian strategies and the dramatic writings of Margaret Cavendish; or, did the duchess feel the anxiety of influence?
JULIE SANDERS

Notes on contributors 306
Bibliography of secondary sources 310
Index 315