Postwar British Politics in Perspective

David Marsh
Jim Buller
Colin Hay
Jim Johnston
Peter Kerr
Stuart McAnulla
Matthew Watson

Polity Press
Contents

About the Authors ix
Acknowledgements xi

Introduction: Explaining Change in the Postwar Period
David Marsh

- A strong historical perspective: theoretically informed, but empirically grounded 2
- A multidimensional approach 6
- A sophisticated conception of change 9
- Let's question positivism 11
- Beyond structure and agency 14
- Don't neglect the ideational 15
- Don't forget the international dimension 16
- Conclusion 17
- The structure of the book 18

Part I
Key Themes of Postwar British Political Development 21

1 Continuity and Discontinuity in British Political Development 23
Colin Hay
Contents

Continuity, discontinuity, change and stability 25
Continuity and discontinuity: the growth of the British state 27
Interrogating institutional change: structure and agency 34
Beyond structure versus agency: interrogating the process of change 39

2 Britain's Economic Decline: Cultural Versus Structural Explanations 43
Jim Johnston
What do we mean by ‘decline’? 44
The cultural thesis 46
Unlikely bedfellows 47
The determinist / voluntarist tension within the cultural thesis 55
Conclusion 63

3 The Postwar Consensus: A Woozle That Wasn’t? 66
Peter Kerr
The postwar consensus: an enduring thesis 67
The consensus ‘debate’ 69
Aiming short of the target: why the consensus thesis has endured 71
Broadening our focus 74
Revising the consensus debate 76
The conflictual character of British politics in the postwar period 83
Conclusion 85

4 Crisis and Political Development in Postwar Britain 87
Colin Hay
Conceptualizing crisis 88
The objectivity and / or subjectivity of crisis 90
The crisis of the 1970s: a crisis of regulation, legitimation or overload? 93
Towards an alternative perspective: on crisis as paradigm-shift 100
From growth to contradiction to crisis 102

5 Britain’s Relations with the European Union in Historical Perspective 107
Jim Buller
Domestic economic management and foreign policy, 1925–61 109
Britain and the European Community, 1961–79 111
The Europeanization of British economic policy, 1979–97 115
The Major government and the ‘Euro-ratchet’ 121
Conclusion 124

6 Globalization and the Development of the British Political Economy 125
Matthew Watson
Positions in the globalization debate 125
Globalization as ideology? 128
Globalization as economic reality? 131
Globalization as more of the same? 137
Globalization and the political restructuring of the state 140

Part II
Key Narratives of Postwar British Political Development 145

7 Questions of Change and Continuity in Attlee’s Britain 147
Jim Johnston
The impact of war 148
The impact of Labour 152
Beyond an agency-centred narrative 154
Towards a dialectical explanation of change 157
What about political constraints? 159
Labourism and the British political tradition 160
Conclusion 165
Contents

8 Explaining Thatcherism: Towards a Multidimensional Approach

Peter Kerr and David Marsh

The Thatcherite chameleon 169
Problems with current explanations 170
Restating the problem of Thatcherism 175
Towards an evolutionary conception of Thatcherism 176
Factors governing the evolution of Thatcherism 180
The evolution of Thatcherite state strategy 184
Conclusion 187

9 The Post-Thatcher Era

Stuart McAnulla

Placing the Major government in context 191
The agency of the Major government 196
Partycraft – the discipline of the new democracy? 200
The post-That-jor era: first appraisals 205
Conclusion 207

Conclusion: Analysing and Explaining Postwar British Political Development

Colin Hay and David Marsh

Analysing and explaining change 211
Explaining change: the relationship between economic, political and ideological explanation 215
Beyond structural versus intentional explanation 217
The relationship between the material and the ideational 218
The relationship between the domestic and the international 220
Conclusion 222

Bibliography 226

Index 246