Contents

Preface xi

Introduction 1

Elisabeth Kraus and Carolin Auer

I: Simulacra in Literature: 21
History and Human Identity

Simulacrum as Sub-Text: Fiction Writing in the Face 23 of Media Representations of American History

Rüdiger Kunow

Simulacrum vs. Death: An American Dilemma in 37
Don DeLillo’s White Noise

Arno Heller

Experiments on Living Matter or How to Save 49
the Narrative from Extinction — The Unfinished
Story of Jean Baudrillard’s and Don DeLillo’s
Cultural Pathology

Michael Stockinger

Pop Goes the Novel: Avant-Pop Literature 64 and the Tradition of the New

Peter Schneck

(The) Playing Author: Narrativity and Identity 75
in Literature and Interactive Media

Karin Esders
II: Simulacra in Science Fiction: Cyberspace, Cyborgs, and Cybernetic Discourse

Return from the Implants: Cyberpunk’s Schizophrenic Futures

   Pavel Frelik

Terminal Notions of What We May Become: Synthflesh, Cyberreality, and the Post-Human Body

   Louis J. Kern

“Just Affix My Reality”: Pat Cadigan’s Constructions of Subjectivity

   Elisabeth Kraus

Warp 9 to Hyperreality: Information Velocity and the End of the Space Age

   Alen Vitas

Interrogation from Hyperspace: Visions of Culture in Neuromancer and “War Without End”

   Herbert Shu-Shun Chan

III: The Commodification of Difference and the Simulation of Co-identity

Pop as a Difference Engine: Music, Markets, and Marginality

   Ruth Mayer

Subverting the Tonto Stereotype in Popular Fiction, Or, Why Indians say “Ugh!”

   Diane Krumrey

“A Transcript from Real Life”: The Simulated Reality of the Social Reportage

   Carolin Auer

Queering Ethnicity, Queering Sexuality: A Paradigmatic Shift in the Politics of Cinematic Representation in Cheryl Dunye’s The Watermelon Woman (1996)

   Andrea B. Braidt