HISTORICAL LINGUISTICS 1995

SELECTED PAPERS FROM
THE 12TH INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON
HISTORICAL LINGUISTICS, MANCHESTER, AUGUST 1995

VOLUME 2: GERMANIC LINGUISTICS

Edited by

RICHARD M. HOGG
LINDA VAN BERGEN

University of Manchester

JOHN BENJAMINS PUBLISHING COMPANY
AMSTERDAM/PHILADELPHIA
Contents

Introduction ........................................................................................................................................... vii

A corpus study of would + have + past-participle ............................................................................. 1
Joyce Tang Boyland

From modal auxiliary to lexical verb: the curious case of Pennsylvania
German wotte ........................................................................................................................................ 19
Kate Burridge

A subject–verb agreement hierarchy: evidence from analogical change in modern English dialects ...................................................................................................................... 35
Carol Chapman

Language change as reranking of constraints ..................................................................................... 45
Young-mee Yu Cho

Loss of prototypical meanings in the history of English semantics or semantic redeployment .......................................................................................................................... 63
Xavier Dekeyser

How a man changed a parameter value: the loss of SOV in Estonian subclauses ............................................................................................................................................. 73
Martin Ehala

Some constraints on the borrowability of syntactic features (and why none of them work) ................................................................................................................................. 89
Kimberley Farrar (née Parsons)

On the (non)loss of polarity sensitivity: Dutch ooit ........................................................................ 101
Jack Hoeksema

The development of secondary stress in Old English ....................................................................... 115
John Hutton

Morphological restructuring: the case of Old English and Middle English verbs ........................................................................................................................................... 131
Dieter Kastovsky

Backdating the English Constraint Grammar Parser for the analysis of English historical texts ....................................................................................................................... 149
Merja Kytö and Atro Voutilainen

Vowel variation in Proto-Germanic ai in 16th and 17th-century Holland ........................................ 167
Arjan van Leuvensteijn
Language prescription: a success in failure’s clothing? ........................................177
  Sharon Millar
Reconstructing the social dimension of diachronic language change ..........189
  Terttu Nevalainen and Helena Raumolin-Brunberg
Grammaticalization versus reanalysis: the case of possessive constructions in German..............................................................211
  Muriel Norde
Word frequency and lexical diffusion in English stress shifts .....................223
  Betty S. Phillips
Post-verbal complements in Old English ...........................................233
  Susan Pintzuk
Semantic stability in derivationally related words ....................................247
  Renate Raffelsiefen
Language change in progress: morphological erosion in present-day
  “South African Dutch” and 18th century “Cape Dutch” .........................269
  Edith H. Raidt
Phonological simplification vs. stylistic differentiation in the history of German word stress........................................................................285
  Elke Ronneberger-Sibold
What is metonymy? ...........................................................................301
  Beatrice Warren
On the development of marked negation systems: the Dutch situation in the seventeenth century ............................................................311
  Ton van der Wouden
On the development of incorporating structures in German ..........................331
  Wolfgang Ullrich Wurzel
Index of subjects ...............................................................................345
Index of names .................................................................................357