LEARNING TO ARGUE IN HIGHER EDUCATION
Contents

Acknowledgments vii
From a Student
Amanda Jacobs ix

Introduction: Learning to Argue in Higher Education
Richard Andrews 1

1 Innocent Concepts? A Paradigmatic Approach to Argument
Aram Eisenschitz 15

2 Rhetoric and Architecture
Peter Medway 26

3 Blinded by the Enlightenment: Epistemological Constraints and Pedagogical Restraints in the Pursuit of “Critical” Thinking
Doug Sweet and Deborah Swanson 40

4 Improving Argument by Parts
Mike Riddle 53

5 “A Workable Balance”: Self and Sources in Argumentative Writing
Nicholas Groom 65

6 “I Don’t Have to Argue My Design—the Visual Speaks for Itself”: A Case Study of Mediated Activity in an Introductory Mechanical Engineering Course
Maureen Mathison 74

7 Context Cues Cognitio: Writing, Rhetoric, and Legal Argumentation
Paul Maharg 85

8 Eager Interpreters: Student Writers and the Art of Writing Research
Claire Woods 96

9 Citation as an Argumentation Strategy in the Reflective Writing of Work-Based Learning Students
Carol Costley and Kathy Doncaster 107
10 Teaching Writing Theory as Liberatory Practice: Helping Students Chart the Dangerous Waters of Academic Discourse Across the Disciplines in Higher Education
Catherine Davidson 118

11 "Argument" as a Term in Talk About Student Writing
Janet Giltrow 129

12 Putting Argument into the Mainstream
Sally Mitchell 146

Bibliography 155

Notes on Contributors 173