Contents

Preface for Instructors  vii

Introduction for Students  xiii

1. Active, Involved Reading and the Writing Process: Establishing the Connection

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Reading with a Difference</th>
<th>1</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Getting into Reading</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thinking Ahead</td>
<td>3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Increasing Vocabulary</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reading a Sample Essay</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

ANDREW PHILLIPS, An Icon for All Seasons  6
A journalist explores the extraordinary cultural impact of Princess Diana’s life and death.

| Thinking about the Reading | 9 |

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Writing with a Difference</th>
<th>6</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Getting into Writing</td>
<td>14</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Planning Purpose, Audience, and Attitude</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hooking the Reader</td>
<td>16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Identifying a Thesis</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Supporting a Thesis</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Organizing the Content</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Connecting the Pieces</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arriving at a Conclusion</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Titling the Paper and Other Final Steps</td>
<td>19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revising the Paper</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Editing the Paper</td>
<td>20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Peer Editing</td>
<td>21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gaining from the Effort</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A Sample Student Essay</td>
<td>22</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CORTNEY KEIM, Our Fair-Weather Friend  23
A student takes issue with Andrew Phillips’s identification of Princess Diana as “an icon for our time.”
2. Mirror, Mirror: How Gender Identity Shapes Self-Image 28

LOOKING AHEAD: Nice Altoids [ADVERTISEMENT] 28
Gearing Up 29
Collaborating 30

PATRICIA MCLAUGHLIN, Venus Envy 31
A columnist reveals more similarities than differences in the attitudes of today's men and women towards personal appearance.

DAVE BARRY, The Ugly Truth about Beauty 34
Men are not really concerned with their own looks or the looks of the women around them, according to this popular humorist.

GLORIA BORGER, Barbie's Newest Values 38
Amid continuing controversy over the impossibly idealized figure of Barbie, this writer argues that the doll's physical attributes are not the real issue.

H. D., Dying to Be Bigger 42
An anonymous young man recounts his addiction to steroids and explores its causes and consequences.

CHRISTINA HOFF SOMMERS, The "Fragile American Girl" Myth 47
Get over the notion that American women are a downtrodden minority, insists this author.

SHARON OLDS, Rite of Passage [POEM] 51
This poet probes the frightening tendencies beneath a young boy's apparent innocence.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER, Women in the 1990s—Names [LETTERS] 54
In a series of letters to the editor, writers respond to the issue of women changing or retaining their own surnames after marriage.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 2 62
Focusing on Yesterday: Honey, I'm Home [PHOTOGRAPH] 62
Focusing on Today: To Have and To Hold [PHOTOGRAPH] 63
Reflecting on the Writing 64
Connecting to the Culture 64
3. Melting Pot or Salad Bowl?:
How Cultural Identity Shapes Self-Image

LOOKING AHEAD: All the Colors of the World
[ADVERTISEMENT] 65
Gearing Up 66
Collaborating 67

RICHARD RODRIGUEZ, Complexion 68
A prominent Hispanic author draws upon personal experience to link skin color, social position, and self-image.

CAROLYN EDGAR, Black and Blue 76
This African American author narrates her struggle with an unachievable standard of beauty among members of her own family and race.

GRACE SUH, The Eye of the Beholder 86
A search for beauty at a make-up counter has disastrous results for this Asian American writer.

JANICE MIRIKITANI, Recipe [POEM] 91
This poet details the effort that may be required to match another culture's standard of beauty.

LEWIS SAWAQUAT, For My Indian Daughter 93
This Native American writer's gift to his young daughter discloses not only the torment he has suffered but also his pride in the heritage they share.

SUSAN BRADY KONIG, They've Got to Be Carefully Taught 97
With a liberal sprinkling of humor, this journalist tackles the serious issue of whether our efforts to stress diversity may sometimes move us farther apart.

MAX FRANKEL, Let's Be Chromatically Correct 101
If we are going to use ethnic labels, this writer urges that we rely on greater accuracy in our descriptions.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 3 105
Focusing on Yesterday: I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing [LYRICS] 105
Focusing on Today: What Do You Look Like? [CARTOON] 107
Reflecting on the Writing 108
Connecting to the Culture 108
5. Fantasies for Sale: Marketing American Culture 149

LOOKING AHEAD: Is there a GAP in your life? [PARODY] 149
Gearing Up 150
Collaborating 151

JOLIE SOLOMON AND ARLYN TOBIAS GAJILAN, A Tale of a Tail 152
The hare-raising escapades of a flipflop-shod drummer have exerted an astonishing influence on the world of advertising.

JOHN FOLLIS, Mad Ave. 156
A veteran of advertising takes us behind the slogans and jingles to offer a revealing glimpse of his profession and his peers.

TARA PARKER-POPE, Custom-Made 161
American corporations are making startling discoveries — and some really unusual products — as they venture into international markets.

JOHN LEO, The Selling of Rebellion 167
Advertising campaigns capitalize on the “no boundaries” attitude of their audience.

MARILYN ELIAS, Under the Influence 171
A journalist investigates the influence of television commercials and programs on alcohol use by minors.

ADAM LEHNER, Sex in the Ice Cubes 175
Images within images, words hidden in photographs, “sex” imbedded in ice cubes — subliminal messages have become a routine part of advertising’s bag of tricks.

READ MERCER SCHUCHARDT, Swoosh! 180
In a culture in which symbols can carry more meaning than words, this writer examines the origin and influence of Nike’s popular icon.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 5 185
Focusing on Yesterday: Things Would Have Gone Better [ADVERTISEMENT] 185
Focusing on Today: United We Stand [ADVERTISEMENT] 186
Reflecting on the Writing 187
Connecting to the Culture 187
6. Flickering Illusions: Television and Movie Messages

LOOKING AHEAD: Bunny Hoest and John Reiner,
Role Models [Cartoon] 188

Gearing Up 189
Collaborating 189

DEBBIE STOLLER, Brave New Girls 190
Damsels in distress have been shoved aside by women who battle with broadaxes, brains, and brash behavior.

NIK COHN, Another Saturday Night 197
The screenwriter of a 1970s classic movie comes out of the shadows to share the spotlight with a musical stage production of his work.

ELLEN GOODMAN, The New Hollywood Male 202
A widely syndicated columnist claims that today’s male screen images suffer from the same mixed messages our society is sending to all men.

TAD FRIEND, Fat, Cheap, and Out of Control 206
This writer reflects on the short, fast lives of three tragic comedians, asking, “Where did we get the idea that fat men are jolly?”

JEANNE ALBRONDA HEATON AND NONA LEIGH WILSON,
Tuning in Trouble 211
Are talk shows good therapy or just stimulating televised trash?

SUSAN KORONES GIFFORD, Why We Really Watch
Made-for-TV Movies 218
These oft-dismissed efforts lack big budgets, big stars, and critical acclaim, but they must be striking a common chord within many television viewers.

STEPHEN KING, Why We Crave Horror Movies 222
The modern master of the genre contends that watching horror movies releases an important steam valve in our social conscience.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 6 226
Focusing on Yesterday: King Kong Rules! [Movie Still] 226
Focusing on Today: Michael Franti and Mark Tiskel, Television, the Drug of the Nation [Lyrics] 227
Reflecting on the Writing 231
Connecting to the Culture 231
7. Changing Our Tunes: Culture and Music Keeping Time 233

LOOKING AHEAD: Tupac Shakur [MAGAZINE COVER] 233

Gearing Up 234
Collaborating 234

MARILYN DUFF, Meanwhile on MTV, They're Shooting Up Classrooms 235
This writer details instances of violence on MTV and questions why such excesses escape criticism just because they have been set to music.

ARMOND WHITE, On the Charts, Off the Covers 239
The cultural influence of black musical artists is reduced by the media's unwillingness to give them the publicity and recognition awarded to others, argues this writer.

CHRISTOPHER JOHN FARLEY, Songs in the Key of Lauryn Hill 246
Time's music reporter interviews this singing sensation and poses interesting questions about hip-hop's place in our music and our culture.

SUSAN DOUGLAS, Girls 'n' Spice: All Things Nice? 251
This author researches the group's career and reflects on the earlier girl groups who paved the way.

BRIAN MCCOLLUM, Today's Pop Stars Hurt by Too Much Publicity? 257
Access to too much information may have permanently blasted the rising stars of future music icons, warns this journalist.

KIKU LOOMIS, That Swing You Do! 262
A dancer examines our modern attraction to dance styles from the first half of the twentieth century.

KURT LODER, The Beatles 265
An MTV anchorman strives to explain the phenomenal power of one of England's major influences on American music.

DICK CLARK, Remembering "Presleymania" 270
This writer, who himself owns a significant place in American musical history, reflects on the amazing, continuing cultural impact of the King of Rock 'n' Roll.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 7 273

Focusing on Yesterday: Elvis Presley [MAGAZINE COVER] 273
Focusing on Today: Madonna, Vogue [LYRICS] 274
Reflecting on the Writing 277
Connecting to the Culture 277

LOOKING AHEAD: Arnie Levin, Incentive [cartoon] 279
Gearing Up 280
Collaborating 280

NELSON GEORGE, Rare Jordan 281
An American sports legend takes his rightful place in our cultural history.

RUTH CONNIFF, The Joy of Women's Sports 287
In the wake of Title IX, this writer reviews the place of women in sports.

KATE ROUNDS, Tying the Score 296
Women's sports magazines fall short of their goal, criticizes this feminist editor.

LORRAINE KEE, Lions and Christians 299
A former sportswriter examines the unlikely teaming up of religion and football.

THAD WILLIAMSON, Bad as They Wanna Be 303
Are college sports really so mired in commercial values that the joy of the game is lost to both athletes and fans?

JAMES COLLINS, Lords of the Ring 310
Stone Cold Steve Austin calls his performance in the ring “a soap opera based on the sport of wrestling,” leading this writer to compare what professional wrestling is today with what it used to be.

LEIGH MONTVILLE, Requiem for a Super Featherweight 315
In the sport of boxing, the truth of the axiom “no one is invincible” sometimes demands a terrible price.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 8 319
Focusing on Yesterday: The Luckiest Man on the Face of the Earth [photograph] 319
Focusing on Today: No Pain, No Hockey [advertisement] 320
Reflecting on the Writing 321
Connecting to the Culture 321
9. From Disney to McDonald’s: Places in the American Heart 322

LOOKING AHEAD: Mark Hess, Cyberhawks [ILLUSTRATION] 322
Gearing Up 323
Collaborating 323

GINIA BELLAFAANTE, Dostoyevsky and a Decaf 324
Bookstores have achieved a prominent place in the social agenda, and this writer explores their influence.

BONNIE ANGELO, Hungry for Theme Dining 328
The Hard Rock Café has been rocking for over a quarter of a century, but suddenly everyone wants a bite of the business of “eatertainment.”

DAN DELUCA, Loving Las Vegas 334
A unique American landmark continues to keep pace with a nation’s cultural evolution.

NORIE QUINTOS DANYLIW, The Kingdom Comes 340
Opening its newest attraction, Disney learns that real animals aren’t as cooperative as Mickey and Minnie.

MICHAEL WHITE, Lights! Camera! Shopping! 344
Customers are no longer content to merely shop or eat; now they want to be lavishly entertained at the same time.

LINI S. KADABA, No Beef 348
“Two all beef patties, special sauce, lettuce, cheese. . . .” But hold the beef! America’s fast-food industry thrives abroad.

T. TRENT GEGAX, Booming Amusement Parks 352
Theme parks soar into a new century by diversifying to meet every customer group’s preferences.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 9 355
Focusing on Yesterday: Did Somebody Say . . .? [PHOTOGRAPH] 355
Focusing on Today: Go Naked to the Mall [ADVERTISEMENT] 356
Reflecting on the Writing 357
Connecting to the Culture 357
10. Virtual Reality: Untangling the Web of Technology

LOOKING AHEAD: Scheme Different [cartoon] 358
Gearing Up 359
Collaborating 360

JOSHUA QUITTNER, Future Shocks 361
This on-line editor thinks couch potatoes will become a thing of the past as we prepare ourselves to become active participants in our own entertainment.

NEIL PEART, Virtuality 366
Song lyrics narrate a virtual romance in cyberspace.

AMY WU, Young Cyber Addicts 369
One young cyberwriter warns that the Internet is a dangerous trap for the unwary.

MOIRA MULDOON, Death and the Hard Drive 373
A writer ponders reflections of her father found locked in his computer's memory.

MAGGIE FORD, School, Girls, and the Information Age 377
If women are to continue to bridge the professional gender gap, then schools must encourage young girls to fully prepare for careers in information technology, insists this author.

AL GORE AND DAVID GELERNTER, Should Schools Be Wired to the Internet? 380
The Vice President and a victim of the Unabomber debate the wisdom of giving every school student Internet access.

CHRISTOPHER PORTERFIELD, Right before Our Eyes 386
One writer who has been an attentive witness marvels at the technological and cultural advances of the twentieth century.

WRAPPING UP CHAPTER 10 393
Focusing on Yesterday: Military Intelligence [advertisement] 393
Focusing on Today: America Wrongline [parody] 394
Reflecting on the Writing 395
Connecting to the Culture 395

Index of Authors and Titles 401