The Citizens at Risk
From Urban Sanitation to Sustainable Cities

Gordon McGranahan
Pedro Jacobi
Jacob Songsore
Charles Surjadi
Marianne Kjellén

SEI
STOCKHOLM
ENVIRONMENT
INSTITUTE

EARTHSAN
Earthscan Publications Limited, London and Sterling, VA
Contents

List of Tables, Figures and Boxes vii
List of Acronyms and Abbreviations ix
About the Authors xi
Acknowledgements xiii
Preface xv

1 Introduction 1
The Greening of the Concept of Development 2
The Emergence of Two Urban Environmental Agendas 4
The Relevance of Globalization 6
The City, Sustainable Development and Globalization 7
The Structure and Arguments of this Book 11

2 Urban Affluence and Shifting Environmental Burdens 14
Stylized Outlines of an Urban Environmental Transition 16
Qualifying the Urban Environmental ‘Transition’ 36
Conclusions 41

3 Urban Water: From Health to Sustainability 44
Water and Urban Health 45
Water and Urban Sustainability 57
Conclusions 65

4 Shifting Environmental Challenges in Accra, Jakarta and São Paulo 67
Methods 68
The Three Cities in Context 70
Shifting Scales of Environmental Problems 73
Conclusions 83

5 Organizing Environmental Improvements in Deprived Neighbourhoods: Plans, Markets, Local Collective Action and Beyond 84
The Planning Model 87
The Market Model 95