Contents

Preface xvii

CHAPTER 1
What Is the History of Medicine and Public Health?
Page 1

ESSAYS
Susan Reverby and David Rosner • Medical Culture and Historical Practice 3
Charles E. Rosenberg • Medicine's Institutional History and Its Policy Implications 9
James T. Patterson • Disease in the History of Medicine and Public Health 17

FURTHER READING 24

CHAPTER 2
Colonial Beginnings: A New World of Peoples, Disease, and Healing
Page 26

DOCUMENTS
2. Cotton Mather, a Boston Minister, Proselytizes for Smallpox Inoculation, 1722 30
3. William Douglass, a Boston Physician, Decries the Dangerous “Infatuation” with Smallpox Inoculation, 1722 33
4. A Broadside Laments the Death of Fifty-Four in a Hartford Epidemic, 1725 35
5. Zabdiel Boylston of Boston Recounts His Experiences as the First Physician to Inoculate Against Smallpox in the American Colonies, 1726 36
7. Andrew Blackbird of the Ottawa Nation Records a Story from Indian Oral Tradition About the Decimation of His People by Smallpox in the Early 1760s, 1887 40

ESSAYS
Colin G. Calloway • Indians, Europeans, and the New World of Disease and Healing 41
John B. Blake • Smallpox Inoculation Foments Controversy in Boston 48

FURTHER READING 54
CHAPTER 3
The Medical Marketplace in the Early Republic, 1785–1825
Page 55

DOCUMENTS
1. George Washington’s Physicians Narrate His Final Illness and Death, 1799 57
2. Elizabeth Drinker, a Philadelphia Quaker, Recounts in Her Diary the Physician-Attended Birth of Her Daughter’s Sixth Child, 1799 58
3. Benjamin Rush Tells His Medical Students at the University of Pennsylvania of the Trials and Rewards of a Medical Career, 1803 60
4. A Medical Apprentice in Rural South Carolina Records Daily Life in His Diary, 1807 63
5. James Jackson and John C. Warren, Leading Boston Doctors, Solicit Support for Founding the Massachusetts General Hospital, 1810 64
6. Walter Channing, a Harvard Medical Professor, Warns of the Dangers of Women Practicing Midwifery, 1820 67
7. A Young Physician Struggles to Get into Practice in Ohio, 1822 70
8. Samuel Thomson, a Botanic Healer, Decries the Regular Medical Profession as a Murderous Monopoly, 1822 71

E S S A Y S
Laurel Thatcher Ulrich • The Medical Challenge to Midwifery 73
Lisa Rosner • The Philadelphia Medical Marketplace 80

FURTHER READING 90

CHAPTER 4
Antebellum Medical Knowledge, Practice, and Patients, 1820–1860
Page 91

DOCUMENTS
1. A New York Medical Student Recounts in His Diary His Emotional Responses to Surgery, 1828 93
2. Jacob Bigelow, a Harvard Medical Professor, Challenges the Physician’s Power to Cure, 1835 94
3. A Medical Apprentice Writes from Rochester About a Cadaver “Resurrected” for Dissection, 1841 96
4. An Eastern-Educated Physician in Indiana Advises Other Emigrants About the Distinctive Character of Diseases of the West, 1845 97
5. Reformer Dorothea Dix Calls on Tennessee Legislators to Turn State Insane Asylum into a “Curative” Hospital, 1847 99
6. A Yale Medical Student Decries the Use of Anesthesia in Childbirth, 1848 101
7. Samuel Cartwright, a Medical Professor and Racial Theorist, Reports to the Medical Association of Louisiana on the “Diseases and Physical Peculiarities of the Negro Race,” 1851 103
8. A Tennessee Physician Calls for the Cultivation of a Distinctive Southern Medical Literature, 1860 106
Contents

ESSAYS

Charles E. Rosenberg • Belief and Ritual in Antebellum Medical Therapeutics 108

Martin S. Pernick • Pain, the Calculus of Suffering, and Antebellum Surgery 114

Todd L. Savitt • Race, Human Experimentation, and Dissection in the Antebellum South 120

FURTHER READING 123

CHAPTER 5

The Healer’s Identity in the Mid-Nineteenth Century: Character, Care, and Competition, 1830–1875

Page 125

DOCUMENTS

1. A County Medical Society Bemoans the Prevalence of Quackery and Public Opinion Opposed to Legal Regulation of Medical Practice, 1843 127

2. Mary Gove Nichols, a Women’s Health Reformer, Explains Why She Became a Water-Cure Practitioner, 1849 129

3. A New York State Doctor Rails to His Professional Brethren Against the Education of Women as Physicians, 1850 131

4. John Ware, a Harvard Medical Professor, Advises What Makes a Good Medical Education, 1850 133

5. Domestic Practitioners of Hydropathy in the West Testify to Their Faith in Water Cure, 1854 135

6. Elizabeth and Emily Blackwell, Pioneer Women Physicians, Extoll the Woman Physician as the “Connecting Link” Between Women’s Health Reform and the Medical Profession, 1859 136

7. Edward H. Clarke, an Eminent Boston Physician, Asserts That Biology Blocks the Higher Education of Women, 1873 140

ESSAYS

John Harley Warner • Science, Healing, and the Character of the Physician 143

Regina Markell Morantz-Sanchez • Science, Health Reform, and the Woman Physician 149

FURTHER READING 157

CHAPTER 6

The Civil War, Efficiency, and the Sanitary Impulse, 1845–1870

Page 159

DOCUMENTS

2. World Traveler Harriet Martineau Advises America on Keeping Troops Healthy During Wartime, 1861 165

3. Kate Cumming, an Alabama Nursing Volunteer, Writes in Her Journal About Conditions in the Confederate Army Hospital Service, 1862 168

4. Medical Editor Stephen Smith Preaches the Gospel of Sanitary Reform During Wartime, 1863 172

5. Nursing Volunteer Louisa May Alcott Reports to Readers at Home About Her Experiences with the Union Army, 1863 173

6. A Maine Physician Writes to His Wife About His Experiences in the Union Army, 1864 176

7. Sanitary Reformers Build upon Civil War Precedents to Clean Up Post-War Cities, 1865 178

E S S A Y S

Suellen Hoy • American Wives and Mothers Join the Civil War Struggle in a Battle Against Dirt and Disease 181

Bonnie E. Blustein • Linking Science to the Pursuit of Efficiency in the Reformation of the Army Medical Corps During the Civil War 190

F U R T H E R  R E A D I N G  195

C H A P T E R  7
Reconfiguring “Scientific Medicine,” 1865–1900 Page 196

D O C U M E N T S

1. Henry P. Bowditch, a Recent Harvard Medical Graduate Studying in Europe, Finds in Experimental Laboratory Physiology the Path to a New Scientific Medicine, 1869 198

2. Clarence Blake, a Young Boston Physician Studying in Europe, Finds in Clinical Specialism the Path to a New Scientific Medicine, 1869 201

3. Roberts Bartholow, a Philadelphia Medical Professor, Celebrates Experimental Medicine and the Ongoing Therapeutic Revolution, 1879 205

4. Daniel W. Cathell, M.D., Counsels Physicians on How to Succeed in Business, 1882 207

5. New York Newspaper Launches Fundraising Campaign for “Miraculous” New Diphtheria Cure, 1894 213

E S S A Y S

John Harley Warner • Professional Optimism and Professional Dismay over the Coming of the New Scientific Medicine 216

Bert Hansen • Popular Optimism About the Promise of the New Scientific Medicine: The Case of Rabies Vaccine 224

F U R T H E R  R E A D I N G  233
CHAPTER 8
Page 234

DOCUMENTS
1. A Professor of Hygiene Reports on the Success of Municipal Laws in Battling the American “Spitting Habit,” 1900 237
2. Charles V. Chapin, a Public Health Leader, Proclaims a New Relationship Among “Dirt, Disease, and the Health Officer,” 1902 239
3. Terence V. Powderly, Commissioner-General of Immigration, Warns of the Menace to the Nation’s Health of the New Immigrants, 1902 241
4. John E. Hunter, an African American Physician, Admonishes Antituberculosis Activists to Recognize That Blacks and Whites Must Battle Germs as Their Common Enemy, 1905 245
5. Advertising Health, the National Association for the Prevention and Study of Tuberculosis Promotes Antituberculosis Billboards, 1910 248
6. A Georgia Physician Addressing “the Negro Health Problem” Warns That Germs Know No Color Line, 1914 250
7. The Modern Health Crusade Mobilizes Children for Health Reform, 1918 253
8. Popular Health Magazine Hygeia Depicts the Germ as a Stereotyped Dangerous Alien Criminal, 1923 256

ESSAYS
Nancy Tomes • Germ Theory, Public Health Education, and the Moralization of Behavior in the Antituberculosis Crusade 257
Alan M. Kraut • Physicians and the New Immigration During the Progressive Era 264
Guenter B. Risse • Bubonic Plague, Bacteriology, and Anti-Asian Racism in San Francisco, 1900 268

FURTHER READING 273

CHAPTER 9
Strategies for Improving Medical Care: Institutions, Science, and Standardization, 1870–1940
Page 275

DOCUMENTS
1. Educational Reformer Abraham Flexner Writes a Muckraking Report on Medical Schools, 1910 277
2. Black Woman Physician Isabella Vandervall Laments the Racial and Gender Discrimination in the Program for Reforming Medical Education, 1917 283
3. The American College of Surgeons Urges Standards for Hospital Efficiency and Physician Accountability, 1918 286
4. Reform Committee Led by Josephine Goldmark Probes Nursing Education, 1923 290
5. Rockefeller Foundation Reacts to a Growing Concern That Medical Education Reform Has Worsened Doctor Shortages in Rural America, 1924

ESSAYS

Ronald L. Numbers • Physicians, Community, and the Qualified Ascent of the American Medical Profession

Kenneth M. Ludmerer • Balancing Educational and Patient Needs in the Creation of the Modern Teaching Hospital

Janet A. Tighe • A Lesson in the Political Economics of Medical Education

FURTHER READING

CHAPTER 10

Expert Advice, Social Authority, and the Medicalization of Everyday Life, 1890–1930

Page 317

DOCUMENTS

1. Questions Answered in a Leading Popular Journal About the Medical Status of Inebriety, 1911

2. A Doctor Advises Mothers in a Mass-Circulation Women's Journal, 1920

3. Psychiatrist Augusta Scott Proselytizes for Greater Legal Reliance on Medical Assessments of Mental Health, 1922

4. The United States Army Tests the Mental Fitness of Recruits, 1921

5. Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Upholds State Sterilization Practices, 1924

6. Families Seek Expert Advice from the Children's Bureau When Health Questions Arise, 1916–1926

ESSAYS

Rima D. Apple • Physicians and Mothers Construct "Scientific Motherhood"

Elizabeth Lunbeck • Psychiatrists, the "Hypersexual Female," and a New Medical Management of Morality in the Progressive Era

FURTHER READING

CHAPTER 11

The Technological Imperative? Hospitals, Professions, and Patient Expectations, 1890–1950

Page 349

DOCUMENTS

1. Physician Charles L. Leonard Extols the Diagnostic Virtues of the New X-ray Technology, 1897

2. Editor of Leading Medical Journal Urges "Precautionary X-ray Examinations," 1912
Contents

ESSAYS

Harry M. Marks • The Politics and Protocols of World War II Venereal Disease and Penicillin Research Programs 409

Susan E. Lederer • The Tuskegee Syphilis Experiment and the Conventions and Practice of Biomedical Research 416

FURTHER READING 423

CHAPTER 13

Public Health and the State During an Age of Biomedical Miracles, 1925–1960

Page 424

DOCUMENTS

1. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Calls Out the Vote for a County Tuberculosis Hospital, ca. 1920s 427

2. A Group of Private Citizens Organizes to Investigate and Reform the American Health Care System, 1932 428

3. Texas Congressman Maury Maverick Pleads for a National Cancer Center, 1937 429

5. President Truman Confronts Congress About the Need for a National Health Program, 1947 435

6. Journalist Bernard Devoto Offers a Public Tour of the AMA's Annual Meeting and a Glimpse into the Mind of the Medical Profession, 1947 437

ESSAYS

Susan E. Lederer and John Parascandola • Screening Syphilis: Hollywood, the Public Health Service, and the Fight Against Venereal Disease 444

Allan M. Brandt • Polio, Politics, Publicity, and Duplicity: The Salk Vaccine and the Protection of the Public 451

FURTHER READING 457

CHAPTER 14

Page 459

DOCUMENTS

1. Medical Editor Warns About the "New Medical-Industrial Complex," 1980 461

2. Public Health Advocates Plead for AIDS Awareness, 1980s 467