A Wealth of English
Studies in Honour of Göran Kjellmer

edited by Karin Aijmer
Contents

Preface i
Tabula gratulatoria iii

Grammar

Based on: From dangling participle to complex preposition 1
Gunnel Tottie & Sebastian Hoffman

The genitive of one of whom. A gap in the morphology and syntax of present-day English 13
Arne Olofsson

The English adjective phrase 23
Nelleke Oostdijk

The distribution of agent marking and finiteness as possible contributors to the difficulty of passive voice structures 39
Graeme Kennedy

Aspects of the syntax of spoken English 47
Pieter de Haan

Miss Vane that was and Sir Alec as was 57
Aimo Seppänen

Extraposition from a systemic functional perspective 73
Jennifer Herriman

Semantics and word-formation

The Latin legacy 81
Pam Peters

A semantic constraint on English word-formation 95
Magnus Ljung
Accounting for compositionality
Beatrice Warren

Through the computer screen
Mall Stålhammar

Germanic vs French stress in disyllabic loan words in English
Ann-Marie Svensson

Elaborating elemental etymology
Gunnar Bergh

William Turner: the first English plant-name scholar
Mats Rydén

Text and discourse
A tool for text explication
John Sinclair

Spoken parentheticals
Anne Wichmann

Contrastive studies
Contrasting delexical English make and Swedish göra
Bengt Altenberg

The English verb seem and its correspondences in Norwegian:
What seems to be the problem?
Stig Johansson

I think as a marker of discourse style in argumentative Swedish student writing
Karin Aijmer

English language teaching
A funny thing happened to me on the way to Sydney
Jan Svartvik
Music and magic

Did rhoticity kill the Hillbilly Cat? 265
Mats Mobärg

Onomastics, grammar and rock’n roll. A grammatical perspective on the names of rock bands: from The Drifters to Johnny Hates Jazz 279
Sölve Ohlander

Pin, pin bring me luck, because I stop to pick you up.
On magic in the English language 301
Gunnar Persson

List of Göran Kjellmer’s publications (selection) 313