The Long Road to Peace in Northern Ireland

Peace Lectures from the Institute of Irish Studies at Liverpool University

Edited by

Marianne Elliott
Contents

Acknowledgments ix
List of contributors x
List of illustrations xiii

Introduction 1
Marianne Elliott

Achieving Transformational Change 9
Sir George Quigley

The Resolution of Armed Conflict: Internationalization and its Lessons, Particularly in Northern Ireland 22
Lord David Owen

Some Reflections on Successful Negotiation in South Africa 41
Frederik Van Zyl Slabbert

The Secrets of the Oslo Channels: Lessons from Norwegian Peace Facilitation in the Middle East, Central America and the Balkans 51
Jan Egeland

The Awakening: Irish-America’s Key Role in the Irish Peace Process 64
Niall O’Dowd

‘Give Us Another MacBride Campaign’: An Irish-American Contribution to Peaceful Change in Northern Ireland 75
Kevin McNamara MP

Towards Peace in Northern Ireland 85
Senator George Mitchell

Neither Orange March nor Irish Jig: Finding Compromise in Northern Ireland 92
Senator Maurice Hayes

Mountain-climbing Irish-Style: The Hidden Challenges of the Peace Process 105
Martin Mansergh
viii  Contents

The Good Friday Agreement – A Vision for a New Order in Northern Ireland 115
Peter Mandelson MP

Hillsborough to Belfast: Is It the Final Lap? 120
Sir David Goodall

Defining Republicanism: Shifting Discourses of New Nationalism and Post-republicanism 129
Kevin Bean

Conflict, Memory and Reconciliation 143
Paul Arthur

Keeping Going: Beyond Good Friday 153
Harvey Cox

Religion and Identity in Northern Ireland 169
Marianne Elliott

Appendices: Key Recommendations of:
1. The Sunningdale Agreement (December 1973) 189
2. The Anglo-Irish (Hillsborough) Agreement (November 1985) 194
3. The Opsahl Commission (June 1993) 200
4. The Downing Street Joint Declaration (December 1993) 207
6. The Good Friday (Belfast) Agreement (April 1998) 223
7. The Report of the Northern Ireland Victims Commission
   (Sir Kenneth Bloomfield, 1998) 235

Index 257