ROMNEY MARSH

Coastal and Landscape Change through the Ages

Edited by
Antony Long, Stephen Hipkin and Helen Clarke

Oxford University School of Archaeology
Monograph No. 56

Oxford University School of Archaeology
2002
Contents

Acknowledgements vii

Foreword (Antony Long, Stephen Hipkin and Helen Clarke) ix

1. The Holocene Vegetation History of the Romney Marsh Region (Martyn Waller) 1

2. Late Pleistocene/Early Holocene Environmental Change in the Romney Marsh Region: New Evidence from Tilling Green, Rye (Martyn Waller and Jason Kirby) 22

3. The Evidence for Late Holocene Foreland Progradation and Rapid Tidal Sedimentation from the Barrier and Marsh Sediments of Romney Marsh and Dungeness: A Geomorphological Approach (Andy Plater, Paul Stupples, Helen Roberts and Caroline Owen) 40

4. Palaeoenvironmental Changes during the Last 4000 Years at Scotney Marsh, Romney Marsh, Kent: A Multiproxy Approach (Chris Spencer and Wendy Woodland) 58

5. Reconstructing Late Holocene Intertidal Environments and Channel Networks: A review of the Role of Benthic Foraminifera Biostratigraphy on Romney Marsh (John Evans and Jason Kirby) 75

6. Romney Marsh: Evolution of the Historic Landscape and its Wider Setting (Stephen Rippon) 84

7. The Late Medieval ‘Antediluvian’ Landscape of Walland Marsh (Mark Gardiner) 101

8. The Rumenesea Wall, Romney and Walland Marshes: A Commentary (J. R. L. Allen) 121

10. Land Holding and the Land Market in a 15th-Century Peasant Community: Appledore, 1400-1470 (Sheila Sweetinburgh) 140

11. “To fasten itt upon his successors, heirs and owners of that howse...so longe as the world standeth”: Family Identity and Romney Marshlands in Early Modern Kent (Mark Merry and Catherine Richardson) 157

13. A ‘Particularly Convenient and Useful’ Arrangement: The Symbiotic Relationship between the Agrarian Economy of Romney Marsh and the Surrounding Region in the 18th Century (Anne Davison) 190
List of publications of members of The Romney Marsh Research Trust
List of Contributors
Index of Places and Historical People