CONTENTS

Preface ................................................................................................................. 7

Gert Melville (Dresden, Germany)
Institutions and the Public Sphere: Some Preliminary Remarks ..................... 9

Peter Uwe Hohendahl (Ithaca, New York, USA)
The Theory of the Public Sphere Revisited ......................................................... 13

Jürgen Schlaeger (Berlin, Germany)
A Reckoning without the Host:
Public and Private Spheres in the Eighteenth Century ...................................... 25

Uwe Böker (Dresden, Germany)
Institutionalised Rules of Discourse and the Court Room as a Site of the Public Sphere .................................................. 35

Juliet H. Wightman (Stirling, Scotland)
'All the world is but a bear-baiting' –
Violence and Popular Culture in the Renaissance ............................................. 67

Alastair Mann (St Andrews, Scotland)
Parliaments, Princes, and Presses:
Voices of Tradition and Protest in Early Modern Scotland ............................... 79

Annette Pankratz (Passau, Germany)
Over the King's Bodies:
The Emerging Public Sphere in Seventeenth-Century England ....................... 93

Heinz-Joachim Müllenbrock (Göttingen, Germany)
Public Opinion in Eighteenth-Century England .............................................. 109

Ian A. Bell (Swansea, Wales)
Literature, Crime, and Society in Eighteenth-Century England ....................... 117

Beth Swan(Chester, England)
Defoe and the Criminal Lawyer: Eighteenth-Century Ideologies of Justice ........ 139
Greta Olson (Freiburg, Germany)

Keyholes in Eighteenth-Century Novels as Liminal Spaces between the Public and Private Spheres .......................... 151

Christoph Houswitschka (Bamberg, Germany)

Family, Crime, and the Public Sphere: 'Incest' in Eighteenth-Century England ............................................. 167

Anna-Christina Giovanopoulos (Dresden, Germany)

Eckhart Hellmuth (Munich, Germany)

Criticising the Constitution; or, How to Talk about the Liberty of the Press in the 1790s ................................. 199

Uwe Böker (Dresden, Germany)

The Prison and the Penitentiary as Sites of Public Counter-Discourse ................. 211

York-Gothart Mix (Marburg, Germany)

Ubi libertas, ibi patria': The Interculturality of German-American Popular Almanacs of the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries ....................... 249