Contents

Acknowledgements ............................................. 6
Preface .................................................................. 7
Introduction: “Land to Light On?” by Sherry Simon ...... 9
The Construction of Minority Subjectivities at the End of the Twentieth Century by Amaryll Chanady .... 21
Ethics and the Imaginary by Lucie Lequin ................. 39
Cracking the Boundaries: Icelandic-Canadian Challenges to Canadian Literature by Daisy Neijmann ............................................... 56 Representations of the “Native Condition” in Watson’s The Double Hook and Deep Hollow Creek by Samara Walbohm ........................................... 80
This Tormenting Time of Indecision:
Performative Metaphors in Austin Clarke’s The Origin of Waves by Heike Harting ......................... 103
The Clash of Languages in the Italian-Canadian Novel by Licia Canton ........................................... 143
Tongue in Cheek: Dutch in Aritha van Herk’s Writing by Christl Verduyn ........................................ 157
Unexpected Adjacencies: Robert Majzels’s City of Forgetting by Lianne Moyes .................................... 168
The Third Solitude: Francophone Writing in the Canadian West by Pamela V. Sing .............................. 190
Ethnic Heterotopias: The Construction of “Place” in Italian-Canadian Writing by Domenic A. Beneventi ...................................... 216
One Hybrid Discourse of Doukhobor Identity:
The Freedomite Diary from Agassiz Prison
by Julie Rak .......................................................... 235
Biographies ......................................................... 255