Contents

Acknowledgments iii

Introduction 1
‘Madness’ in Australia: histories, heritage and the asylum
Catharine Coleborne and Dolly MacKinnon

Part One
Australian Trajectories

Chapter One 11
Asylum histories: reconsidering Australia’s lunatic past
Stephen Garton

Chapter Two 23
From dangerous lunatic to human rights?: the law and mental illness in
Australian history
Mark Finnane

Part Two
Gender and Spaces

Chapter Three 37
The ‘ideal asylum’ and nineteenth-century lunatic asylums in South Australia
Susan Piddock

Chapter Four 49
Space, power and gender in the asylum in Victoria, 1850s–1870s
Catharine Coleborne

Chapter Five 61
Gender, space and work: the asylum as gendered workplace in Victoria
Lee-Ann Monk
Chapter Six 73
'Hearing madness': the soundscape of the asylum
Dolly MacKinnon

Part Three
Administration, Regulation and Public Scrutiny

Chapter Seven 85
Administration and the asylum in Victoria, 1860s–1880s
Andrew Crowther

Chapter Eight 97
Flickering insights: the press, the state and the asylum and Goodna Mental Hospital, Queensland, 1915
Raymond Evans

Chapter Nine 109
Sexuality and 'madness': regulating women's gender 'deviance' through the asylum, the Orange Asylum in the 1930s
Ruth Ford

Chapter Ten 121
Psychiatric abuse at Chelmsford Private Hospital, New South Wales, 1960s–1980s
Emily Wilson

Part Four
Social and Cultural Histories of 'Madness' and The Asylum

Chapter Eleven 135
A horror of the asylum or of the home: women's stories 1880–1910
Janice Chesters

Chapter Twelve 145
'Forehead low, aspect idiotic': intellectual disability in Victorian asylums, 1870–1887
Charles Fox
Chapter Thirteen  157
‘Jolly and fond of singing’: the gendered nature of musical entertainment in Queensland mental institutions c1870–c1937
Dolly MacKinnon

Chapter Fourteen  169
‘Crazed with grief?’ The asylum and the Great War in Australia
Tanja Luckins

Part Five
History, Memory and Cultural Heritage

Chapter Fifteen  183
Collecting ‘madness’: psychiatric collections and the museum in Victoria and Western Australia
Catharine Coleborne

Chapter Sixteen  195
Preserving psychiatry through art: historical perspectives on the Cunningham Dax Collection of Psychiatric Art
Belinda Robson

Chapter Seventeen  207
Reading psychiatry’s archive: academic medicine and psychiatric medicine in mid-twentieth-century Victoria
Ann Westmore

Chapter Eighteen  217
Asylums as cultural heritage: the challenges of adaptive re-use
Ray Osborne

Notes  231

Index  267