Re-shaping the Genres

Restoration Women Writers
Contents

Editors' acknowledgements 7

Introduction: re-shaping the genres
JORGE FIGUEROA-DORREGO & ZENÓN LUIS-MARTÍNEZ 9

Part I. Lyric poetry: expanding the codes

‘Angry I was, and Reason strook away’: Margaret Cavendish and her lyrical acts of rebellion
MARÍA ISABEL CALDERÓN 19

Broken emblems: Anne Killigrew’s pictorial poetry
RAFAEL VÉLEZ-NÚÑEZ 49

‘Hell in epitomy’: Jane Barker’s visions and recreations
JORGE CASANOVA 67

Part II. Drama: changing the scene

Representing women in Restoration England: a re-assessment of Aphra Behn’s The Rover
PILAR ZOZAYA 99

Witty women masking gender and identity:
the comedies of Mary Pix in context
CARLOS J. GÓMEZ 123

Of Spain, Moors, and women: the tragedies of Aphra Behn and Mary Pix
PILAR CUDER-DOMÍNGUEZ 157
‘Shakespear with enervate voice’: Mary Pix’s Queen Catharine and the interruption of history

ZENÓN LUIS-MARTÍNEZ

175

Part III. Narrative: engendering fictions

‘A world of my own’: Margaret Cavendish’s auto/biographical texts

BELÉN MARTÍN-LUCAS

213

Reconciling ‘the most Contrary and Distant Thoughts’: paradox and irony in the novels of Aphra Behn

JORGE FIGUEROA-DORREGO

233

Devising a new heroine: Catharine Trotter’s Olinda’s Adventures and the rise of the novel reconsidered

SONIA VILLEGAS-LÓPEZ

261

‘I look’d through false Glasses’: letters versus fiction in Delarivier Manley’s Letters

MARÍA JESÚS LORENZO-MODIA

279

Notes on contributors 301