DEVELOPING LOCALLY
An international comparison of local and regional economic development

Edited by Andrew Beer, Graham Haughton and Alaric Maude
Contents

List of tables, figures and case studies
Acknowledgements
Preface
List of abbreviations

one International comparisons of local and regional economic development
Andrew Beer, Graham Haughton and Alaric Maude
Introducing local and regional economic development
Defining and redefining local and regional economic development
Same language, different meanings, different terminologies
Different political and institutional structures for local and regional economic development
Methods
The organisation of the book

two Understanding international divergence and convergence in local and regional economic development
Graham Haughton, Andrew Beer and Alaric Maude
Introduction
Governance, institutions and the state
Local and regional economic development and the social construction of knowledge
The advantages of regional development organisations Conclusion: local experimentation is conditional, learning is partial three Local and regional economic development organisations in international comparison

Andrew Beer, Graham Haughton and Alaric Maude
Institutional architectures for local and regional economic development
The objectives and activities of local and regional economic development agencies
The impact and effectiveness of agencies
Conclusion

four Local and regional economic development in England
Graham Haughton
Introduction
Objectives and activities of local and regional economic development organisations
Range of local and regional economic development activities in England
Institutional effectiveness
The policy effectiveness of individual activities
Conclusion