Thomas Hardy and Contemporary Literary Studies

Edited by
Tim Dolin
Curtin University of Technology

and

Peter Widdowson
University of Gloucestershire
Contents

Acknowledgements ix
Notes on Contributors x
A Note on Texts Used xii

Introduction: Hardy and Literary Studies at the Turn of the Century 1
Tim Dolin and Peter Widdowson

1. Flesh and Spirit in Thomas Hardy 14
   Terry Eagleton

2. Hardy and the Limits of Culturalism 23
   Guy Davidson

   J. Hillis Miller

4. Hardy or James? Thoughts on Academic Literary Discrimination Today 54
   Simon During

5. Hardy, Barbarism, and the Transformations of Modernity 65
   Brett Neilson

6. A Laodicean: Hardy and the Philosophy of Money 80
   Roger Ebbatson

7. Story, History, Allegory: Some Ironies of Jude the Obscure from a Benjamin Perspective 99
   Michael Hollington

8. The Contemporary, the All: Liberal Politics and the Origins of Wessex 116
   Tim Dolin

9. ‘Saying that now you are not as you were’: Hardy’s ‘Poems of 1912–13’ 138
   Linda M. Shires

10. Hardy, History, and Recorded Music 153
    Tim Armstrong
Contents

11. Hardy and Contemporary Textual Studies: Authorial Intention in The Trumpet-Major
   Mary Rimmer 167

12. Thomas Hardy at the End of Two Centuries: From Page to Screen
   Peter Widdowson 178

Notes 199

Works Cited 210

Index 221