Blacklines

Contemporary Critical Writing by Indigenous Australians

Introduced by Ian Anderson, Michele Grossman, Marcia Langton and Aileen Moreton-Robinson

Michele Grossman, Coordinating Editor

MELBOURNE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Contents

Contributors vii
Acknowledgements xi

Introduction

After Aboriginalism: power, knowledge and Indigenous Australian critical writing
Michele Grossman 1

Part I Critical discourses: identities, histories, knowledges

Introduction: the Aboriginal critique of colonial knowing 17
Ian Anderson

1 The end in the beginning: re(de)finding Aboriginality 25
Michael Dodson

2 Black bit, white bit 43
Ian Anderson

3 Aboriginality and corporatism 52
Philip Morrissey

4 Always was always will be 60
Jackie Huggins

5 Tiddas talkin' up to the white woman: when Huggins et al. took on Bell 66
Aileen Moreton-Robinson

Part II Imaging Indigeneity: art, aesthetics, representations

Introduction: culture wars 81
Marcia Langton

6 Language and lasers 92
Lin Onus
Contents

7 Seeing and seaming: contemporary Aboriginal art 97
Hetti Perkins

8 The presentation and interpretation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander art: the Yiribana Gallery in focus 104
Margo Neale

9 Aboriginal art and film: the politics of representation 109
Marcia Langton

Part III Knowledge in action: politics, policies, practices
Introduction: resistance, recovery and revitalisation 127
Aileen Moreton-Robinson

10 Better 132
Martin Nakata

11 ‘Nothing has changed’: the making and unmaking of Koori culture 145
Tony Birch

12 Australia’s Indigenous languages 159
Jeanie Bell

13 Overturning the doctrine: Indigenous peoples and wilderness—being Aboriginal in the environmental movement 171
Fabienne Bayet-Charlton

14 Wandering Girl: who defines ‘authenticity’ in Aboriginal literature? 181
Sonja Kurtzer

Afterword 189
Moving, remembering, singing our place
Philip Morrissey

Notes 194
Bibliography 215
Index 233