Forests in transition: The role of research and higher education in developing national forest programmes in countries with economies in transition

Edited by Libor Jansky, Ilpo Tikkanen, and Paavo Pelkonen
Contents

Preface ........................................ viii

Acronyms .................................... xi

Part I: Introduction ................................ 1

1 Setting the scene ........................... 3
   Risto Päivinen

2 Research and capacity building in sustainable forestry development  ............... 6
   Motoyuki Suzuki

3 International challenges for countries with economies in transition: Development needs in higher education and forest research  ............... 11
   P. Pelkonen and D. Gritten

Part II: Forest policy development in transition ......................... 19

4 Policy perspectives on national forest programmes in Europe  ......................... 21
   Peter Mayer
Contents

5 Institutional and legal framework for forest policies in the ECA region and selected OECD countries – A comparative analysis .......................................................... 26
   Birger Solberg and Kazmierz Rykowski

Part III: Central Europe .......................................................... 33

6 Research and education at the Faculty of Forestry of the Warsaw Agricultural University in the context of the needs of the national forestry programme. ....................... 35
   Jerzy Mozgawa, Piotr Paschalis and Edward Stepien

7 The role of research and education in forest policy during the period of transition in Slovakia .............................................. 44
   Ján Ilavský and Roman Longauer

Part IV: Eastern Europe .......................................................... 63

8 Status of the forest sector and the role of scientific investigations and higher education for establishment of a national forest programme in Bulgaria during the years of economic transition ........................................ 65
   Hristo Tsakov and Alexander Alexandrov

9 Serbian forestry conceptual statement as the base for a national forestry programme ...................................................... 73
   Radovan Nevenic and Milos Koprivica

10 Science and education in national programme of forestry development in FR Yugoslavia with special reference to the development of lowland forestry ........................................ 81
    Jovan Marković and Saša Orlović

Part V: The Baltics ................................................................. 93

11 Forestry research and higher education in Latvia .................... 95
    Ilze Silamikele and Henn Tuherm

12 The role of university-level forestry education and research development in the Lithuanian forestry sector during the period of economic transition ........................................ 110
    Albinas Tebėra and Edmundas Petrauskas
Contents vii

Part VI: CIS region ................................................................. 123

13 Current state and prospects for sustainable development of forestry in the Republic of Moldova ........................................... 125
   Petru Cuza

14 Forestry researchers and their role in development of the national forestry programme in Ukraine ......................................... 128
   V. P. Tkach and I. F. Buksha

15 Actual role and prospects of higher education and research in development of forest policies in Ukraine ............................. 146
   P. I. Lakyda and S. V. Zibtsev

16 Forests and forest policy in the Republic of Belarus in the transition period ................................................................. 152
   N. O. Kurk, V. F. Baginsky and V. F. Pobirushko

17 Theoretical basis of university education in the field of forestry in Russia ................................................................. 159
   A. N. Oblivin

18 The role of research and higher education in national forest policy in Armenia ................................................................. 166
   Hrachya Hovakimyan and Armen Nalbandyan

19 Main trends in forestry development in the Republic of Azerbaijan ................................................................. 169
   S. Z. Ahmedova

20 The role of scientific research and higher education in the performance of the national programme for the development of forestry facilities in Uzbekistan .......................................... 171
   Khasan Ch. Buriev

Part VII: Asian perspective ................................................................. 179

21 Outlook studies for the national forestry programme in Japan ....................................................................................... 181
   Hiroyasu Oka

22 The national policy and programme on forests in India ....................................................................................... 193
   K. Srinivasan

Contributors ....................................................................................... 210